GUARD CALLED ON 2ND DAY OF SHIP WALKOUT

Alabama Troops Summoned to Prevent Violence at Boat-Building Yard.

CONSTRUCTION HALTED

Men Building Liberty Ships Protest Paying for Ferry Ride Across Bay.

(By United Press)

MOBILE, Ala.—Five companies of Alabama state guardsmen were mobilized by Adjt.-Gen. Ben Smith today to prevent any outbreak of violence at the Alabama Drydock and Shipbuilding company's Pinto island yard where workers were on strike for the second day.

Armed guardsmen under command of Lieut. Col. Robert Joerg, jr., patrolled Mobile streets shortly after three companies of northern Alabama troops arrived.

It was reported the walkout, unauthorized by officials of the CIO shipbuilding union, "virtually paralyzed" production of Liberty ships at the yard.

The workers walked out protesting the introduction of a five-cent ferry from Mobile to the shipyard. The new ferry service was instituted by the city at the request of the maritime commission and replaced a free ferry service which the shipyard had operated. The maritime commission held the free ferry was "inadequate."

Officials of the union said the walkout was not authorized, but a delegation of officers and members of the local, the Marine and Shipbuilders Union, was picked to go to Washington to confer with maritime commission officials on settlement of the dispute.

First signs that a strike might be impending came yesterday when more than 2,000 workers staged a march on the city hall, only a few hours after the new ferry went into operation.

Minor violence followed the parade and 20 workers, including the local union president, were arrested and charged with "unlawful assembly." A. B. Kendrick, the president, also was charged with "inciting to riot." A company of state guardsmen was mobilized yesterday but had not taken part in the dispute. Another company had been ordered to stand by, but was not mobilized.

Approves List of Agencies to Share In War Chest Fund

Approval of local and national agencies seeking admittance to the Community and War Chest of Mansfield and Richland County rested with the executive committee of that organization today after recommendations had been made by the admissions and distribution committee.

Action upon a number of agencies was taken by the admissions and distribution committee at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the call of C. A. Hines, chairman, to consider applications. The committee declined to make public the names of organizations recommended to the executive group until the latter gave its approval to the list.

H. E. Brunner, president of the War Chest organization, is expected to call a meeting of the executive committee Monday to consider the recommendations, Hines said.

The War Chest campaign that will combine all war relief and welfare drives, exclusive of the Red Cross, into one major effort, will probably take place in November. The organization was formed in June as an economy measure as it will eliminate the many individual drives that heretofore has consumed the time and effort of both contributors and solicitors.

Mayor Urges People To Shun Witness Rally, See Air Show.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Mayor Frank J. Lausche today urged residents of Cleveland not to attend a lecture meeting sponsored by Jehovah's Witnesses, a Pacifist sect, on Sunday.

"I can't attend because I have a previous engagement," Lausche said. "But if I could attend I wouldn't, and I urge the people of Cleveland not to attend. A better service can be rendered the country by attending the army war show."

Steubenville 'All Out' for War Industry

Drive for New Plants Gets Whole-Hearted, City-Wide Backing.

Over in the eastern Ohio city of Steubenville—not quite but almost as large as Mansfield—a drive is under way to obtain new industries for that city.

The movement is similar to that started in Mansfield last July, with two exceptions.

One is that Steubenville is already practically 100 per cent in the war effort industrially, and is not satisfied with what it has done. It wants to feel more secure. It wants to progress, and is taking steps to do so.

Secondly, Steubenville's progressive step is gaining wholehearted city-wide support. It has a steering committee of eight civic leaders which has the backing of a "Committee of 100". The steering committee's duty is to draft a program. The "Committee of 100" is pledged to do whatever it is called upon to do to carry out the program.

Mansfield has a war industry board of five members. Like Steubenville, this committee has publicly asked for suggestions on progressive industrial steps. It has received few, if any, suggestions. Necessarily without too much fanfare, the war board is working regardless.

The Chambers of Commerce in Steubenville, the nearby town of Weir-Cove and the Kiwanis clubs of Steubenville, Toronto and Wellsburg, W. Va., the Steubenville Rotary club, the Steubenville Lions club and other civic organizations are represented on the "Committee of 100."

The Mansfield Retail Merchants association and city council have pledged support to the Mansfield War Industry board. No other endorsements have been made publicly.

In Steubenville, the drive for new industry was started by the Lions club. The city's Kiwanis club president, Robert L. Quinn, said at the meeting, "We're glad that someone had the plain unadulterated guts to start something."

Hal Votey, Steubenville Chamber of Commerce manager, offered the services of the chamber to the group, declaring that his Meat Truck Drivers Agree To Submit Wage Dispute.

CINCINNATI—(UP)—A strike of about 300 truck drivers, which halted the delivery of meat to retailers throughout the Cincinnati area, ended at 11 a. m. today when meat dealers and drivers agreed to submit a wage dispute to arbitration.

The agreement was reached after federal conciliators summoned representatives of the wholesale meat dealers' association and the Teamsters and Chauffers' union (AFL).

The strike, the second of Cincinnati truck drivers in the last three weeks, was called after the union rejected a company proposal for a 5 and one-half cent hourly wage increase. The union decided to ask for a 25½ cent hourly raise.

DISASTER UNIT TO MOBILIZE

Red Cross Preparedness and Relief Committee Receives Call For Sept. 24.

The first all-out mobilization of the disaster preparedness and relief committee of Richland county chapter of the Red Cross will be conducted Thursday night, Sept. 24, at South Park pavilion.

"Mobilization Night" notices addressed to the 100 men and women operating under the disaster setup headed by Robert Black were in the mail today with a card attached for reply. The meeting will start at 8 p. m. and the committee ranks will be augmented by representatives from both Staff Assistance and the Women's Motor Corps.

Responsibilities of all subdivisions in charge of rescue, medical aid, transportation, food, shelter, clothing and other emergency relief will be outlined by Chairman Black who re-organized the disaster set-up last fall.

Other speakers will also appear on the program including L. W. Birch, county chairman of the Red Cross. Invitations will be extended to Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of Mansfield Civilian Defense and Mayor W. J. Locke.

The mobilization meeting will

SOLDIERS DROWN CROSSING CREEK

Lose Lives as They Swim Swollen Stream In Maneuvers.

LEESVILLE, La. —(INS)— Military authorities announced today the drowning of four 3rd army soldiers who were swept away by the flood-swollen current of the stream they were trying to cross during Louisiana maneuvers.

They were Sgt. Delcorsa, 24, Pittston, Pa.; Pfc. Evans M. Reynolds, 23, Graham, Tex.; Pfc. Mike Pleyer, 25, Chicago, and Pvt. Gerald Van Ort, 25, Chicago.

Attempting to reach their objective on the other side, the soldiers plunged into the treacherous current after the only available bridge had been "blown up."

Citizens Shirk Home Defense Tasks, Air Raid Wardens Say

Meeting in a "pep" session last night at the City building Mansfield's air raid wardens told their organization troubles to Chief Warden Glenn W. Marriott, reported their progress, and pledged greater efforts to complete an effective civilian defense set-up in the city.

At the suggestion of Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense director, chief wardens in each of the city's six wards will meet every Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the City building to take inventory of their progress and equipment.

Aroused by a News-Journal survey which showed that the average Mansfielder knows little about what to do in an air raid "alert," the chief wardens called for volunteers with first aid training or who are willing to take training to qualify as wardens.

Ward leaders last night reported widespread lack of interest in civilian defense activities in their communities. One leader said he had been unable to get any men in his precinct to serve as wardens and had to enlist the help of women who, he added, "are doing a good job.

He said one man refused because he had to take his wife to her bridge club the nights first aid classes were held, another because he liked to fish at night, and others only because they didn't want to take first aid training."

"Some fellows asked me how much I was getting out of my job as ward leader and others wanted to know what political party I belonged to," a leader said.

"That makes a fellow pretty mad when he's spent nearly $20 for gasoline in his organization work and receives nothing but kicks for it," the warden added.

Marriott told the approximately 25 ward leaders at the meeting

FDR Puts McNutt in Charge of 4 Government Agencies.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Extending the power and authority already invested in Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission, President Roosevelt today issued an executive order officially placing four government agencies and their functions under the manpower chieftain.

The agencies transferred were:

1. The United States Employment Service and all functions, duties, and powers of the Social Security board in the federal security agency relating to employment service.

2. The National Youth Administration.

3. The apprentice training service.

4. The training-within-industry service in the office of the federal security administrator.

Farm Bloc Pushes Fight for Higher Parity Formula

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Senate farm bloc leaders today planned to carry to the senate floor, if necessary, their fight for a new and higher farm parity formula in the anti-inflation bill.

They revealed their plans after tentative decisions of the senate banking and currency committee tightened wage provisions of the new bill by writing into it the war labor board's "Little Steel" wage formula, but left undetermined what it will do about the parity formula.

Sen. John H. Bankhead, D., Ala., author of an amendment to the bill which would adjust the present parity by including the cost of hired farm labor, served notice that the banking committee's expected rejection of his proposal would not deter him from offering it from the floor.

Committee members predicted that in the light of President Roosevelt's "unalterable opposition" to changing the parity formula they would reject Bankhead's amendment when they meet today, and agree to report the measure to the senate for debate Monday.

Bankhead's plan to offer his amendment in the senate drew support from the senate agriculture committee which has scheduled a meeting to discuss it. But senate Republicans, after a party caucus, endorsed the objectives of the administration bill and senate Republican leader Charles L. McNary of Oregon said he would vote for it.

Wilson Heads 'High Command' To Assure Meeting War Needs

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—America's war industries began operations today under a five-man "high command" armed with power and charged with responsibility for guaranteeing that vital production schedules and programs are met adequately and on time.

Top production man is Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric company and newly-appointed vice chairman of the war production board. He will serve as chairman of a five-man production executive committee and will exercise the powers of WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson in making production decisions.

Serving with him will be Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, head of the army's services of supply; Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, commanding general, material command, army air force headquarters; Vice Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, director of material and procurement for the navy, and Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, American Fighter Planes Pour 35,000 Rounds of Shots Into Enemy at Buna.

FIRES STARTED AT RABAUL

U. S. Submarines Destroy Four Enemy Ships in Attack on Supply Lines.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today that American fighter planes sent 35,000 rounds of cannon and machine-gun fire crashing into the Japanese supply base at Buna, New Guinea, while United Nations heavy bombers set fires visible 30 miles in an assault on Rabaul, New Britain.

Buna is the main base of supplies for Japanese troops driving across the towering Owen Stanley mountains toward Port Moresby, a key Allied outpost for the defense of Australia.

A United Nations communique said the attack on Buna destroyed or damaged 15 enemy landing barges and left supply dumps in flames.

Coupled with these aerial blows at Japan's striking power, the navy in Washington announced that U. S. submarines had destroyed four more ships and registered torpedo hits on four others in the campaign against Japan's far-drawn supply lines in the western Pacific.

The new attacks raised to 107 the total of Japanese ships sunk or damaged by American underseas craft alone since Pearl Harbor, and made a grand total of 258 Japanese ships destroyed or damaged by all action, compared with 53 United States ships lost or damaged.

The scene of the U. S. submarines' latest successes was not disclosed, but the navy said the operations were unrelated to the continuing campaigns in the Solomon and Aleutian islands.

Murphy Calls It 'Greatest Under the Sun Today.'

NEW YORK — (UP) — Justice Frank Murphy of the supreme court, who relinquished his duties as a lieutenant colonel on active duty last midnight, believes that "our army is the greatest under the sun today."

Arriving last night by plane, he said the new army was "trained by men with ability, trained with enthusiasm and vigor."

"We have a new type of officer today who is a real leader," he said. "He is up in the front lines with a machine gun slung across his back and a knife straped to his side."

Murphy said that he knew how the American soldier was trained, because he was on duty with them, and had fired almost every kind of gun.

Calls Price Of Dieppe Raid 'High'

Canada Tells of Gains, Losses Resulting From Attack.

(By Associated Press)

OTTAWA—The Canadian government disclosed today that two-thirds of the Canadian armed force used in the Dieppe raid Aug. 19 was lost, dead, wounded or missing, and said that "a very high price was paid" considering what was gained.

The government announced that 5,000 Canadian troops were used in the attack. Canadian casualties which had been announced earlier, totaled 3,350.

A 4,000-word review issued by Defense Minister J. L. Ralston, the first comprehensive official statement on the operation, summed up the raid as follows:

"For lessons learned and the advantages gained, the forces, and particularly the land forces, paid a very heavy price."

The Canadian army furnished all but a small part of the land forces and suffered 3,350 casualties—170 killed, 633 wounded and 2,547 missing—in the costliest Canadian military operation of the war.

These losses, the statement

SAYS JAPS WILL NEVER 'CRACK'

Grew Believes Nazis Will Give Up When Tide Turns But Japs Must Be Destroyed.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — The Germans will "crack again" when the tide of battle turns against them, but the Japanese will fight to the bitter end and can be defeated only by complete physical destruction or exhaustion of their men and materials, Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Japan, predicted today.

He told a war luncheon rally here that this was his answer to arm chair strategists who recommended that the United Nations defeat Hitler first "and then mop up the Japs."

Defeat—total defeat—is the only language known to an army such as Japan's which "today is hoping to bivouac on the White House lawn," he said.

To those who believe that Japan's military plans are the "pipe dreams" of "fanatics and, at times, barbarians," he said that this was what Japanese military leaders hope to do, intend to do and will do if they can:

"First to bomb important American centers and then, eventually, invade America."

Grew said the United Nations

BACKS TO BANK OF VOLGA

2 German Attempts to Storm Industrial Center Repulsed In 24-Hour Period.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW—(AP)—Taking a stand with the precipitous banks of the Volga at their very backs, the defenders of Stalingrad have counter-attacked and wiped out two enemy wedges within the city in a supreme, last-ditch effort to save the great manufacturing center from the Germans, the Russians said today.

The Germans precipitated this bitter and thus far successful Russian counter-action by rushing into the city proper from the northwestern outskirts, and pushing almost to the cliffs overhanging the west bank of the Volga.

With no choice between counter-attack and surrender, the Russians took their stand.

A terrible battle flamed along the tree-lined avenues leading to the riverfront. The first German units which had speared through the city, pointed by tanks, were forced back. The struggle continued in mounting violence with the enemy trying to fortify himself in the northwestern fringe of Stalingrad.

Two successive German efforts to take Stalingrad by storm were reported repulsed in the last 24 hours.

The first penetration into the city's street, announced in last night's Russian communique, has been repulsed. The mid-day bulletin said that two battalions of enemy infantry again rushed into one of the streets but were forced to retreat after severe hand-to-hand fighting.

Meanwhile the Red army was

More American Troops Land, Go to Training Camps.

LONDON —(AP)— Thousands of American troops arrived in Britain recently to swell the ranks of the rapidly expanding United States army in this country waiting for the opening of a second front.

While they have been whisked away to camps already, announcement of their arrival was not permitted until today.

They came in a typical convoy of great ships, which were well known passenger liners in peacetime, and disembarked at a number of British ports.

The crossing of the Atlantics was made swiftly and not a single German submarine was sighted, it was reported.

RUSSIANS STAGE COUNTER-BLOW AT STALINGRAD

Wipe Out 2 German Attempts To Storm City and Force Nazis on Defensive.

credited with a new offensive in the Voronezh area, about 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said that an artillery, mortar and aerial bombardment to soften the German positions and plough paths through the enemy minefields, barbed wire systems and firepoint was followed by an infantry advance in several sectors.

Russian troops moved forward swiftly from the south and east, the dispatch said, and occupied several positions around German besieged Voronezh.

On the north side of Voronezh, German defenses were said to have slowed down the Russian offensive, but the Russians nevertheless were credited with breaking their way through the obstacles. On the west bank of the Don—that is, on the opposite side of the river from Voronezh—a series of important hills were reported occupied.

On the central front where the Russians have been on the offensive for some time they were said to be pressing the foe still farther away from Moscow. (This evidently is a reference to the Rzhev front, northwest of the Russian capital.) Red Star said that another fortified line had been occupied.

The Elite SS greater German division, which recently appeared on this front after being taken to the rear for reorganization was reported to have suffered a serious defeat, having lost 1,500 men and more than 60 of the divisions original 110 tanks.

Stalingrad, however, remained the most vital sector of Russia's whole great battleline.

Field dispatches said the Nazi air force, striking in formations of 80 to 100 planes, continues to lay waste sections of the Volga river city, but 19 were brought down by ground gunners and outnumbered Soviet fighters.

Soviet tanks were declared by the army newspaper Red Star to have smashed into a Nazi-fortified zone, destroyed 48 anti-tank guns and killed 950 troops with gunfire and caterpillar treads, crushing enemy forces hidden in ditches behind the Volga hills.

German dead and the hulks of Nazi tanks and trucks were reported to have littered the streets after the Russians won the upper hand in the northwestern section of Stalingrad.

The Germans attacked in a familiar pattern. Squads of automatic rifle men, hunched low and running, moved up first in an effort to cut through and disrupt defenses from the rear. Tanks and motorized infantry followed them. Overhead planes dumped bombs on knots of Soviet resistance.

Streams of bullets whined and richocheted through the streets and the defenders were forced back for a time, but they rebounded to oust the invaders at bayonet point, yard by yard and house by house.

The Russians were backed down tree-lined avenues to cliffs overlooking the Volga waterfront at one time. With precipices behind them and tanks before them, they organized their counterattack in a surpreme effort to save the great economic center from the Germans.

A Tass dispatch said thousands of fresh Siberian troops, their military training newly completed, were now moving to the front and many were already engaged in the battle of Stalingrad, now in its 25th day.

(A Berlin radio broadcast—skipping all reference to a previously advertised "special announcement from Hitler's headquarters" which failed to materialize as scheduled last night—said the Russians were resisting fanatically and suicidally. Its major boast was that "Stalingrad had ceased to be a solid block of resistance.")

Russian troops battling to save the Grozny oil fields and Caucasus mountain passages were reported to have repulsed German assaults in the Mozdok area and reoccupied a village.

Reds Hurl Forces At Finnish Lines

HELSINKI—(AP)—The Russians have been hurling fresh forces at Finnish lines north of Lake Onega for the past three days and have lost more than 1,000 killed, the Finnish high command announced today, adding that all the attacks had been repulsed.

The Russians reported today that a local attack in one sector of the Karelian (central Finnish) front had forced a Finnish retreat. Helsinki's location of the fighting places it between Lake Onega and the White sea, along the Murmansk railway.

U. S. Paratroops Train In Britain

They are commanded by Lieut. Col. Edson D. Raff, New York City.

said, were probably due in part to the misfortune "of a chance encounter" with an escorted German tanker in the English channel.

"Such small circumstances are often important in operations of this kind," the statement said, for that mishap marred "complete achievement of surprise."

Out of the convoy, one armed enemy trawler was sunk and another probably was destroyed, but the incident had two results on the later land operation:

1. The British No. 3 Commando force which had the task of attacking and destroying a battery at Berneval, six miles east of Dieppe, was unable to complete its assignment.

2. The royal regiment of Canada was 20 minutes late reaching the beach at Puits, a half mile east of Dieppe, and had to land in broad day-light instead of semi-darkness.

"The enemy garrison at this point (Puits) were manning formidable prepared defenses, were well provided with machineguns and mortars and were on the alert," the statement said.

"In consequence, the royal regiment came under fire before landing and under very intense fire at the moment of touching the beach. Although the troops rushed to the attack through a deadly cross-fire with the utmost gallantry, the regiment suffered extremely heavy casualties and only a temporary lodgment was obtained."

This failure prevented the clearing of a headland east of Dieppe, part of the plan to protect the main force which attacked the beaches of Dieppe itself.

For reasons of military security the statement was silent regarding the main objectives of the operation and the important results achieved.

Hint Ad Tipped Off Nazis On Dieppe Raid

LONDON —(INS)— The startling information that British military intelligence officers are investigating the possibility that the German high command may have been "tipped off" to the Commando raid against Dieppe was revealed today by the Daily Mirror.

The newspaper said the intelligence officers were probing a newspaper advertisement which appeared four days before the Dieppe assault on Aug. 19.

Hundreds of letters from anxious amateur "spy catchers" were received by the war office following the appearance of the advertisement which was labeled "beach coat from Dieppe."

The advertisement showed a woman pruning rose bushes with a pair of wire clippers. In an accompanying description of the coat, mention was made of four buttons and six button holes.

The letters from the amateur sleuths said that the word "Dieppe" referred to the locale of a coming raid while the coat itself meant the attack would be a "combined operations," or Commando attack.

The wire clippers were seen as an indication of a beach assault while the four buttons and six button holes were interpreted as meaning the attack would come between 4 a. m. and 6 a. m.

(Editor's Note: The Commandos made landings on six beaches along a 10-mile front starting at 4:50 a. m.)

Dried Fruit Bar Perfected For Soldier Dessert

BERKELEY, Cal. —(INS)— After a year of development, University of California scientists have perfected a dried fruit bar that may serve as dessert for Uncle Sam's soldiers on emergency rations, either in the heat of the Libyan desert or the below zero temperatures of the arctic.

The bar contains ground dried fruits, including figs, apricots, prunes, raisins and enough honey to keep it from drying out.

Dr. W. V. Cruess, head of the university's fruit products laboratory, said the friut bar was designed to balance dietically the other parts of the army's field ration, supplying a concentrated source of energy, vitamins and minerals.

Dr. Cruess said he and his assistants worked toward the goal of perfecting a fruit bar which would hold up under any climatic condition, whether the soldier was in Greenland or Egypt.

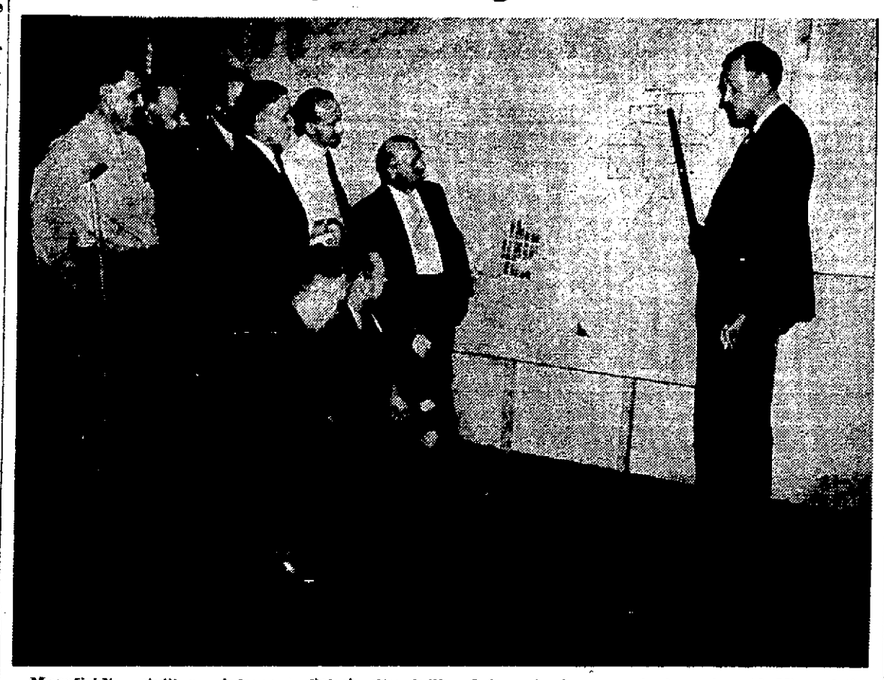
At 'Shake-Up' Meeting of Air Wardens



Mansfield's civilian defense organization received a "shake-up" last night at a meeting of air raid wardens with Chief Warden Glenn W. Marriott and Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, city civilian defense leader, at the city building. Marriott is shown here pointing out on a map of the city wards how the sector posts will be set up to provide prompt action in the event of an air raid. Nine of the ward leaders listen as the plan is outlined. Mansfielders are lax in a great many respects in shouldering responsibilities of the home defense program, air wardens charged.

that "It's your responsibility to organize your wards. Choose at least four people in every sector to help you, have them meet and receive instructions and qualify for wardens."

Leaders from the first four wards in the city reported that organization work was well under way in their communities. Those from the Fifth and Sixth wards, however, said they were having considerable trouble getting volunteers as wardens and assistants.

Judge Kalbfleisch said the ward leaders who have been organizing their sectors "deserve a pat on the back."

He said the city will have about 550 wardens when the organization is completed and booklets telling what to do in an air raid will be distributed to every home. He added that the booklets were ordered a long time ago but they have not arrived.

"We have found twice as much enthusiasm since the newspaper stories appeared as we had before, and it doesn't make any difference to me who was criticized just as long as we get some action in this thing," Judge Kalbfleisch said.

He urged wardens to establish sector posts in garages or basements that are built substantially and start equipping them to meet the civilian defense requirements.

"The air raid warden is the backbone of civilian defense," he said. "We need manpower for these sector posts and we need to train men as wardens before we send them out to attempt to give instructions in house-to-house calls."

Marriott said men and women who want to volunteer for training as wardens should contact these ward leaders:

First ward—Ralph Hughes and John Massa; Second ward—Clarence Shill and Earl Saltzgaber; Third ward—W. E Bradford and L. G. Bergstrom; Fourth ward—H. F. Brinkman and J. R. Wolfgang; Fifth ward—J. A. McDermid and J. B. Miller; Sixth ward—George Berg, W. C. Beer, jr., Paul Webber, and Stanley Knapp.

PARACHUTE FOREMAN HAS TOTAL OF 403 JUMPS TO HIS CREDIT

(By United Press)

MATHER FIELD, Cal. — Few men in aviation circles can match the experience or confidence that George Waltz, civilian foreman of the parachute department at Mather Field, has in the big umbrellas.

With 14 years of experience with the aerial life savers, Waltz has 403 jumps to his credit, all of them logged. The number of the ship, its pilot, date, altitude and kind of jump was recorded after every descent.

Waltz' parachute jumping career started by accident. While flying in Mexico, he took to his 'chute to save his life when fire broke out. He dropped about 5,000 feet before remembering to pull the rip-cord, landing safely but considerably shaken by the experience.

Nevertheless, he went up again the following day and made a voluntary jump. His second descent gave him the idea of becoming a professional jumper, and after several exhibitions at air meets and other demonstrations, his services were in demand by many barnstorming pilots.

He has had four forced jumps and on two occasions fell out of the ship. His first fall occurred when one of his students became wedged in the plane door. Waltz gave him a push but lost his balance and fell headlong through the door himself. Fortunately he was wearing a parachute at the time.

Another unexpected descent occurred while on an assignment for a mountain resort. He was taking pictures of a proposed landing field, standing with one foot outside the plane on a strut, the other hooked into the cockpit. About that time, the plane went into a spin, brushing Waltz off balance. Over he went but his parachute saved him and the expensive camera he was using.

While acting as chief tester for an eastern parachute manufacturing concern, Waltz made a total of 38 jumps in one day. On the same day with World war ace Bod Lindsay as pilot, he made two jumps from 2,000 feet in the fast time of nine minutes from the time of take off for his first jump to the landing for the second one.

Of all the humorous incidents in his experience, Waltz believes the 7,500 foot descent he made into a freshly irrigated cabbage patch is the outstanding one.

A woman busily engaged with a rake in the patch must have thought him a man from Mars because Waltz had to beat a hasty retreat when she began shouting and waving her rake at him.

Waltz also has made several delayed jumps, the longest of 13,000 feet.

During a recent demonstration at Long Island, N. Y., he made two low altitude drops with a newly designed 'chute. After dropping less than ten feet he opened his parachute at 250 feet from the ground on one jump, 500 feet on the other.

It is Waltz' proud boast that he has given parachute jumping instruction to 170 students in one year without a single failure or injury.

Moviegoers have seen his work in a number of aviation pictures, among them "Hell's Angels." But the major portion of his parachute work has been for demonstration purposes.

Waltz came here from Reno, Nev., where he was associated with the Parachute Rigging school as chief instructor. He is a member of the Nevada state police and captain of the Washoe county, Nev., Sheriff's Aerial squadron.

vice chairman of the U. S. Maritime commission.

Effect of the new move is to draw tighter under Nelson's immediate control the reins over war plants. The first step in that direction came recently when Nelson reclaimed authority to issue priority ratings over materials in the field which he had delegated to procurement officers of the armed services.

WPB officials said the production "high command" is a natural follow-up to that move. This group, it was said, will not only determine the amount of materials which are to be car-marked for certain points, but will be responsible for seeing to it that production schedules in those plants are met on time.

Another responsibility of the board will be to make certain that various parts of war weapons reach assembly plants in the proper order necessary for construction of guns, ships, planes and other implements of battle. Authorities said production has been slowed in the past by irregular arrival of parts at assembly stations.

Wilson will serve as a dollar a year man. He has been in the electrical industry since 1899 when he became associated with the Sprague Electric company, New York, which later was absorbed by the General Electric company. He has been head of General Electric since 1940. His home is in Scarsdale, N. Y.

organization has considered several possibilities for boosting employment by bringing capital in industry into the Steubenville area.

At the "Committee of 100" meeting, 20 or more men stated opinions as to possibilities of bringing war industries, large and small, and other divirsified types of industry to Steubenville within the next few months, a report of the meeting said.

Jack N. Berkman, chairman of the meeting, said "all suggestions were helpful and that the steering committee would weed out the non-essentials and arrive at a clear-cut program of action." This would then be referred to the "Committee of 100."

SETS UP DUTIES

FDR Gives Nelson, Jeffers Full Rubber Authority.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— President Roosevelt today formally vested in WPB Chairman Donald Nelson and Rubber Director William M. Jeffers full authority to direct the operations of all government agencies concerned in carrying out the government's rubber production and conservation program.

The rubber director, the president said in an executive order, will operate directly under Nelson, who was instructed "to assume full responsibility for and control over the nation's rubber program in all of its phases."

The president said his order, defining the function of the new rubber director, was issued in order to carry out certain recommendations of the Baruch committee.

GUNS HARD TO KEEP

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Normal Kalal always has made it a practice to keep a revolver in his filling station to deal with robbers. But what he needed most was a burglar alarm. Burglars took the gun. He got another. They stole that one. He got a third—the oldest and cheapest one he could find. Now that one is gone too, and with it miscellaneous merchandise.

WASPS UNPATRIOTIC

HOUSTON, Tex. —(U.P.)— Louis W. Wagner, attorney, was a casualty of the rubber salvage campaign. Searching for old rubber in the garage of his home, Wagner lifted two discarded inner tubes and disturbed a wasps' nest. Nine or ten of the angry insects attacked Wagner, but Uncle Sam's war machine will get the rubber.

front, dispatches said both sides were busily maneuvering for position, with the Japanese still stalled atop a 3,000-foot ridge at Ioribaiwa, 32 miles airline from Port Moresby.

An Allied spokesman said the lull was expected to be short-lived, and Australian troops were reported countering Japanese tactics with their own flanking and infiltration movements.

Believe Japs Gird For New Solomon Attack

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The Japanese were believed today to be preparing a powerful naval task force for another all-out attempt to retake the Solomon islands from American marines.

Naval observers made that prediction as the navy brought its total of enemy ships announced sunk or damaged within the last week to 18. The last communique credited American submarines with torpedoing eight Japanese boats, sinking four of them.

Some observers placed considerable credence in Chungking reports that the Japanese have dispatched four battleships to augment their naval forces already in the southwest Pacific. They pointed out that the Chinese have an excellent espionage system which has accurately predicted Japanese naval movements in the past.

They also believed that the diminishing of the intensity of fighting on Guadalcanal, the major base wrested by American marines from the Japanese last month, was the lull before a new storm.

They based their belief partly on the fact that Japan has given clear evidence she would make great sacrifices to recapture the Solomons and could be expected to risk capital ships in the venture if she thought there was a chance of success.

Berlin Hears Jap Planes Raid Darwin

BERLIN — (From German broadcasts) — (AP) — The Berlin radio reported an official announcement in Tokyo today that Japanese planes had made a heavy raid on Darwin, Australian north coast port.

It said the Japanese also had reported 15 Allied planes downed in air combat yesterday over northern Australia and New Guinea at a cost of only one Japanese plane.

(There was no confirmation from any other source for either of these enemy claims.)

Take Tamative In Madagascar Drive

LONDON —(AP)— A strong new British force has landed on the east coast of Madagascar and occupied the port of Tamatave after some French resistance, the British East Africa command announced today.

Tamatave is 130 miles northeast of Tananarive, the Island's inland capital, and the first British beach head on the east coast. The new landing came after the French colony had turned down British terms for an armistice.

The Tananarive radio meanwhile, broadcast a vehement statement from Armand Annet, Madagascar's governor-general, contending that unacceptable peace terms offered by the British left only the choice "to fight to the end."

(London said the spurned armistice terms were purely military proposals for surrender.)

Caution Children About Rabid Dogs, Health Chief Says.

With a third dog, which had been bitten by one of the two animals which have died of rabies, under strict surveillance, city and county health officials today appealed to owners of pets and to school officials to rigidly safeguard children against roaming dogs.

William C. Miller reported today that more than a score of exposed animals had been disposed of during the last week and that approximately 200 pet owners have confined their animals beyond possible contact with straying dogs.

According to Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, Ohio laws provide for the vaccination of dogs against rabies. Word is expected from the state health department laboratory soon regarding analysis of the brain of a dog which died Wednesday from a rabies attack.

Arm brassards, identification cards and manuals explaining the functions of each of the committee's 10 sub-divisions will be presented to the members of the disaster organization. Distribution will be made by the Staff Assistance corps.

The committee will have the opportunity to see the speed with which a mobile canteen operates when the unit supplied by a Columbus utility company for public display all-day Thursday makes its appearance at the park.

Black said that the canteen would be given a motorcycle escort from the Richland Trust corner down Park avenue west to the pavilion and that it would be ready for food distribution within a quarter of an hour.

Atty. Marshall Moore is vice chairman of the disaster organization and sub-division chairmen include: survey, L. J. Ott; rescue, Martin Merschdorf; medical air, Dr. Leopold Adams; shelter, Supt. W. Red Cross Given New Quota for Knitted Articles

An alert for the knitters of Richland county chapter of the Red Cross was sounded today when the new quota of 1,000 garments for the army and navy, scheduled for completion by Jan. 1, was received from national headquarters.

Approximately 650 pounds of olive drab and navy blue wool to be made into sweaters, mufflers, scarfs, gloves and helmets are due to arrive soon at the Red Cross Production Center but no materials will be given out until the present over-due quota is filled.

An urgent appeal to all knitters to finish garments by Sept. 30, was sent out by the Red Cross headquarters this week in compliance with a demand from the national organization. All articles must be finished at that time, Miss Lenore Van Cundia, executive secretary, said, so that the new quota can be started.

The next quota includes 400 sleeveless sweaters and mufflers for the army and 517 turtleneck sweaters, scarfs, helmets and gloves for the navy.

AMAZON ARMY SEARCHES FOR JUNGLE RUBBER

40,000 Natives of Brazil Harvest Vital Material For United Nations.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—An army of "tappers," now estimated to number some 40,000 men, is beating its way through the sweltering jungles of the Amazon Valley to bring out the wild rubber so vitally needed in the United Nations' war effort.

Officials hope that before the year is ended, another 20,000 men will be added to the ranks of the "rubber army." The principal difficulty now is said to be one of equipment, although as time goes on the question of manpower will become more urgent.

As an indication of the huge quantities of materials needed in this vast project, officials estimate that no less than 100,000,000 tapping cups will be needed to collect the rubber. Because of the scarcity of metals, the use of plastics in their manufacture is being considered.

In addition to the cups needed for collecting the rubber, thousands of machetes and other kinds of cutting instruments, shot guns, sieves, spouts, wringers, files and other paraphernalia are required.

Officials explained that each tapper must be something of a self-sufficient "production unit." Working alone, or with small groups, he must first hack his way through the tense undergrowth to reach the latex-bearing trees. The tapper's food supply must be obtained with a gun or fishing line.

When the latex begins to flow, equipment is needed to prepare it for shipment. Boats are needed to move the rubber to the various collection points.

An essential part of the collector's equipment is atebrine, a substitute for quinine used in combating malaria. Dr. Earl N. Bressman, director of the Agricultural Division of the Office of Inter-American affairs, recently told a senate committee that a preliminary equipment order from Brazil called for the shipment of 3,000,000 of these tablets. Other items requested included 250,000 shot gun shells, 5,000 shot guns and 5,000 files. Officials here hope to obtain in Brazil at least part of the equipment needed.

Experts call the Amazon rubber scheme one of the most ambitious Inter-American enterprises ever undertaken. The untapped wild rubber resources of the Amazon Valley are virtually unlimited and some experts estimated that 750,000 tons annually could be obtained from this region if sufficient manpower and equipment could be made available.

The task, however, is one of gigantic proportions. In the East Indies and Malaya, the rubber trees are close together on plantations. In the Amazon Valley, the trees are spread over an area of some 2,500,000 square miles, separated by every imaginable natural obstacle. In some places, several rubber trees can be found within the area of an acre, but this is not generally true.

In his testimony before the senate committee, Dr. Bressman said emphasis is being placed upon small "rubber farms" rather than upon huge plantations like those in the Far East.

They Play Leads In 'Tom Sawyer'

Preparation to stage "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," on Nov. 15, are now underway in the dramatic classes of Mrs. Alice Partello.

The production will be presented under Mrs. Partello's direction and auspices and the cast of pupils will be aided by a number of grown-ups and high school pupils.

YOM KIPPUR TO BE OBSERVED BY MANSFIELD JEWRY SUNDAY

Yom Kippur or the Day of Atonement, the holiest day of the Jewish year, will be observed by Mansfield's Jewish population beginning Sunday evening and concluding at sunset the following day.

Services will be held at both B'nai Jacob temple, 55 Sturges avenue, and at the Temple Emanuel, 132 West Second street. Rabbi Jacob Rub will conduct the service for the B'nai Jacob congregation Sunday at 7 p. m. and again Monday at 8 p. m.

A visiting rabbi, Alvin Luchs of Columbus, will be in charge of services at the Temple Emanuel at 8 p. m. Sunday and again Monday at 10 a. m.

The keynote of Yom Kippur is the divine assurance that guilt can be atoned for by penitence, prayer and righteous action. This concept follows the inherent democracy of Judaism which considers all men equal before their maker.

The day is ushered in at the beginning of the evening service by a prayer, Kol Nidrei, widely known because of its specific traditional music. It concludes with a service called "the closing of the gates," recalling the closing of the temple gates at Jerusalem and symbolizing the closing of the day of prayer.

CLUB PLANNING SCHOOL DANCE

The Monday Night club has set Saturday night, Sept. 26, as the time for the annual dance of the organization open to all high school pupils.

Festivities for that occasion will be transferred from the Y. M. C. A. to the Senior high school "gym" and Percy Lowry's orchestra of Columbus will furnish the music.

William Moody, club president, heads arrangements for the affair.

UNDER BOND IN ASSAULT CASE

BUCYRUS—Charles Brooks, 28, colored, Galion, was taken into custody Thursday at Marion, and brought to Bucyrus by sheriff's deputies to answer to a charge of assault and battery brought by F. P. Robinson of Galion.

Brooks was bound to the grand jury when he pleaded not guilty to the charge. He was placed under $500 bond, and was committed to the county jail.

The charge was filed following an altercation which arose when Robinson protested Brooks was trespassing on his farm, east of Galion.

Smithy No Longer Shoes Horses But Business Is Good

RENSSELAER, N. Y. — (U.P.) — The smithy in this city hasn't shod a horse in six years, but he's one of the busiest man in town.

Fred Meloy, who operates probably the oldest blacksmith shop in the state, proves he's doing the business by pulling out his bankbook. He says he never made so many deposits in his life.

Shortages in the metal line are proving a boon for Meloy. He repairs and welds just about everything you can mention.

Meloy's shop is an historic museum piece. It was erected slightly less than 300 years ago, but having been built without a foundation, it's sinking at an alarming rate.

But Meloy doesn't mind how much it sags and sinks. He says he will continue doing business at the same old stand so long as he can keep the bank balance in black ink.

Speeding production in plants that are arming America is a job in which Ohio Oil Company Engineers and Marathon Lubricants are daily playing their part

How can the proper lubricant, back in a midwest war plant, help put more shells in the hands of American gunners on our battle fronts?

How can the choice of the right oil in an airplane parts plant help put more fighters and bombers in the air — faster?

Perhaps this will give you some idea . . .

On the roaring, high-speed machines that turn out shells in a midwest plant, it had been necessary to interrupt production, every 8 hours, to regrind the "taps", an important working part of these intricate machine tools.

Ohio Oil Company lubrication engineers were called in, a newly developed Marathon Cutting Oil was put on the job. And, as this is written, it has been unnecessary to grind "taps" in 11 days' operation.

Or take another case, in a large airplane parts plant . . .

By changing to a new Marathon Cutting Oil, developed for the job, work speed of machine tools was doubled . . . the time required for an important operation cut in half, spoilage reduced, tool life lengthened.

These are not isolated cases. They are typical of the job Ohio Oil Company Lubrication Engineers and research men are doing, today, to help America speed up production . . . help speed the day of victory.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1942.

Drivers at the new 35-mile speed limit report passing through a surprisingly large number of villages that they hadn't noticed before.

It is being noted with some surprise that rains come along during what would ordinarily be the county fair season—just as if county fairs hadn't been called off for this year.

Not that it is new, but that it may sometimes be forgotten, it is in St. Luke, 6:41, that the question is asked: "And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but perceivest not the beam that is in thine own eye?"

Military Training for Schoolboys

RECALLING the hullabaloo raised a few years ago by persons who became agitated over the idea that some semblance of military training might be introduced into the Civilian Conservation Corps, and the strong effort made to eliminate military training from state supported colleges, the present trend toward drilling schoolboys in military fundamentals indicates a marked change in public thinking on this subject.

It has since become quite evident that much of the propaganda against military training and preparedness in this country was inspired by agents of what are now enemy nations, innocently augmented by idealistic pacifists, "conscientious objectors," and the like, who apparently thought that unpreparedness for war would preserve peace.

Mansfield's military training of boys under draft age has thus far been confined to the Legion Cadets, in the 16 to 19-year age range, sponsored by McVey post, American Legion, but opening of the school year finds this movement growing to the extent of enlarging the physical education programs in many cities to include preliminary military training in public high schools.

This is being done through organization of high school cadet corps, intended to include all boys who meet physical requirements. Whether for peace or war, such training and discipline is excellent for boys of high school age, and has the advantage of being accessible to a large majority instead of the comparatively few who can qualify for football and other high school sports.

It is also being kept in mind that, if the war continues as long as now seems likely, draft age will probably be reduced to eighteen years, and some training before reaching that age will have definite value.

Hungarian Patriot's Anniversary

UNDER happier conditions the world would join with Hungary this week-end in celebrating the birth of the great patriot, Louis Kossuth, born September 19, 1802. His struggles against the tyranny of the Austrian government and for parliamentary rule in Hungary brought about his imprisonment as a dangerous agitator. Still he remained an undaunted friend of liberty, and finally, in the revolution of 1848, he became the ruler of his country for a few weeks. The Austrian troops had to call in the aid of the czar of Russia before they could overthrow his government.

Unlike most national heroes, who have usually been successful in freeing their people, Kossuth failed outwardly. He has lived, however, in the memory of Hungarians and of lovers of liberty everywhere.

He would not find much to make him happy nowadays, with Hungary co-operating, more or less willingly, with the Axis. He would have hoped, as Americans must do, for better days to come.

Army Camps Need More Books

ARMY CAMP librarians are not permitted, under army regulations, to solicit gifts of books or anything else for their libraries. The reason for the regulation is obvious and wise. But a layman who has lately been visiting at one of the larger camps makes this suggestion.

Let people with a few dollars to spare, who want to do something for boys in the services, go to their local librarians and ask for names of books new and now popular—neither cheap nor highbrow but good, practical and interesting. Then let them take the list to the local book store and pick the best they can for the money and send them to the nearest camp.

Good, modern books on physics, chemistry, aviation, gasoline engines, welding and so on are needed. Good modern fiction, history, literature, poetry and essays are all in demand. Mystery stories pass many an evening for tired service men. Mathematics of all sorts interest the boys, and they also like geography. In short, they like all good reading. They are as varied in taste as the families they come from, but most of them want to improve themselves. Libraries in camps come under the head of recreational activities, but they are educational, too.

The Vanishing Railroad Pass

ANOTHER fading institution seems to be the railroad pass. Years ago railroads lavished passes freely, not merely on their employes, but on anyone who might be in a position to help the road in return. So many legislators and other public men got passes that it became a scandal, and laws had to be passed forbidding the practice.

Passes remained, of course, for employes. One of the pleasantest features of working for a railroad has been the opportunity it gave for free vacation transport, not only on the rider's line but on the other roads.

Now railroad travel for pleasure is becoming outlawed. By the latest development, some western roads have asked their employes not to use their passes unless the travel is strictly necessary.

War Reduces Dope Supply

EVERY now and then word comes of good arising from war shortages. Addiction to drugs is one case. Most of the dope, whether morphine, heroin or opium, comes from Asia. The war has virtually shut this off. Many drug addicts, according to the latest annual report of the U. S. commissioner of narcotics, have thus been forced to take cures.

Others find their dope diluted with milk sugar, sometimes as much as 98 per cent. This may slowly work a cure on its takers without their knowledge.

With commando training available in some of the eastern colleges, postwar football promises some lively innovations.

Amateurs Hamper FBI Spy Work

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

FOR AN ordinary, unofficial individual to hint at a suspicion that considerable hysteria is responsible for much of the talk of enemy spying activities in our midst isn't very safe for the citizen who risks saying so. He's apt to get himself accused of disloyalty of his own, attracting the investigator's attention to himself and making his life miserable.

Attorney Francis Biddle expresses himself on the subject, however, as a cabinet member, making a formal report to congress, with a good bit of authority.

The justice department's head referred especially to charges of an extensive un-American movement in the ranks of governmental employes.

The federal bureau of investigations, headed by J. Edgar Hoover, of his departmental staff, has probed more than 4,500 of these cases, certified to it from various sources, and ascertained that nine-tenths of them were a pure waste of time and money to bother with, according to the attorney general.

He doesn't deny that there may be a modicum of subversion (by one in 10 of the suspects pointed to) but his thesis is that the FBI had better be left to devote itself to real espionage instead of being distracted in so many directions that don't require the slightest bothering with.

Too Many Amateurs.

The FBI, he intimates, will do a better job left to itself than if it is annoyed by so much amateur detective work.

It is a fact that charges of espionage are far more prevalent now than they were during the last war. Probably it's because enemy government's secret agencies are greatly better organized today than they were then. There also is the greatly increased number in the mixture of "isms." Some folks are mildly "ismatic" who aren't outright disloyal. They say things that get them into disrepute with 100-percenters.

At the present moment there's a pending political campaign which makes for unpleasant remarks back and forth.

Illustratively, Representative Martin Dies, star congressional investigator of enemy subversion in the United States, took a mean crack at Attorney General Biddle in answer to the latter's complaint of wildcat investigation. Biddle mentioned him, by name, as having turned in a huge percentage of ridiculous accusations. Congressman Dies' answer is that Biddle is less interested in winning the war than in winning the November election.

Biddle and Dies are of the same political party, by the way, but Martin had to make some sort of a come-back and that was the first thrust that occurred to him. It was inconsistent, but so is the whole controversy, generally.

As to this coming election, the fact is that Democrats quarrel more bitterly among themselves than Democrats quarrel with Republicans.

The Republicans' story is that they want to win in November for the purpose of doing a more effective job of war-winning than the Democrats are doing. The Democrats disagree as to what THEIR administration is accomplishing.

This case illustrates it.

All a Republican has to do is to argue that—

Yes, he is unqualifiedly for war victory, but he is anxious to win in November, because that's the surest way of doing it.

What makes him think so?

Why, because the Democrats are so quarreling among themselves that they are getting nowhere.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Southeast cornerstone of the original Capitol building at Washington, D. C., was laid on Sept. 18, 1793, by President Washington. Original designs were prepared by Dr William Thornton and the work was done under the direction of Stephen H. Hallet, James Hoban, George Hadfield, and B. H. Latrobe, architects. Sandstone from quarries at Aquia Creek, Va., was used in the construction.

Listen World!

Women Will Decide

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE hundreds of articles about women in war work: What'll happen when the scrap is over? Who'll take care of the home, babies and husbands they have left for the duration?

It's all very interesting. But none of these articles touches the essential problem . . . namely, what's going to happen in the woman herself when she once shakes the home dust from her heels?

Now I'm a woman. Not a career woman. A plain old-fashioned wife and mother who was forced by circumstances to go out and bring in the bacon.

To this day I would rather dig in a garden and cook in a casserole than head the most flamboyant column. Yet I am going to be perfectly frank with you. From my own experience — and the frank admissions of my female fans—I know all too well what will happen when mama heads for the defense factory. Restlessness will happen. And restlessness isn't something you're going to cure in six correspondence school lessons after the war is over. Feminine restlessness is something we'll probably never cure, which may be the best thing that ever happened to this human race.

After all, there's nothing abnormal about such restlessness. Men, not women, placed it on the taboo list. Men, not women, assumed that the female of the species was a domestic tabby-cat who shrank from change. Men, not women, decreed that us gals should dote on sheltered lives.

As a matter of fact, we do nothing of the sort. We are as reckless adventurers as men ever dared to be. We may and do like our shining kitchens, our restful living rooms. But we don't stop there. We like to go out and see what's cooking just as much as our lords and masters. And if you give us an assembly line to work on or a blood bank station, you'll probably have to use dynamite to blast us off it.

Nor did it need this war to make this fact apparent. Women have been oozing into the spotlight for quite some time. Victorian, shackled women like Florence Nightingale. Meek, quiet little researchers like Madame Curie. Big brassy gals like Dorothy Thompson. And don't forget me. Yes, we may and do have babies, and geranium pots in our windows, and specialize on chicken waffles on Sunday night.

We may even wear idiotic hats and kickshaws now prescribed by fashion. But don't be misled. Underneath we are as untamed and untamable as Vesuvius, and that ain't just smart verbiage. For it's going to make history—and plenty—when Dad comes home from the battle front and expects Mom to do an industrial fade-out.

Well, what's wrong with that, Bill? Would you be content to go back and take up ping-pong again, or maybe crocheting, after operating Flying Fortresses for several years? Of course you wouldn't. Then why expect it of the Missus? A three-room furnished apartment is no more her natural sphere—nor an outlet for her native energies—than it it for you. A prospect which you may view with alarm but which I anticipate with much elation.

The simple fact is, the American home has long been an anachronism in the machine age. It wastes more human energy and cold cash than any other institution in our social framework. Whether it is run by the wife alone or with the aid of a helper, it is completely outmoded and belongs in the pantalette era.

This isn't knocking homes. But it is knocking housework, as is. The home should be run as efficiently and economically as a factory. The idea that each family in the block should duplicate the drudgery and expense of every other family is as absurd as a witch doctor's mumbo-jumbo. It's time we yanked our domestic chores into line with other modern programs. And the war, plus feminine rebelliousness, is going to teach us how to do it.

Plan to Attack Siberia or India Indicated By Japanese Statement

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

THE WORLD'S big ears are twitching with the announcement by General Hata, Jap commander in chief in China, that "the east Asia war is about to take an important step in co-operation with the European war"—a statement calculated to convey the impression that Nippon is going to attack Russia or India.

Just what scheme motivates the Japanese in spreading this propaganda isn't apparent, although the odor of red herring is pretty strong. Maybe the Japs are telling the exact truth—adopting Hitler's tactics of fooling the enemy by announcing his real intentions in advance. It's equally possible that Hata is just lying, for benefit of mikado and country.

The probabilities are that Japan doesn't want to undertake either of these dangerous adventures. They would be illogical military moves, since her whole business now should be to consolidate her dangerously wide-spread conquests before America's rapidly growing strength overtakes her. She will be a fool if she attacks Russia or India.

Still, the importunities of the powerful Hitler may move the Japs to embark on a new war in hopes that this may hasten the end of the Allies. The fall of Stalingrad would be impressive and should the Japs be beguiled into playing cat's paw for the Nazi all-highest, the fall of Stalingrad might turn the trick.

THE PERILS Japan would risk in going after Siberia or India would be many. The most vital consideration is that in either case she would be seriously weakening her forces of all categories in the southwest Pacific, thereby making Uncle Sam's task immeasurably easier.

This would be particularly true as regards India. Overland invasion through Burma and across the towering mountain ranges isn't feasible on a big scale. The Japs would have to employ a great water-borne expedition. And right now they need every transport, warship and airplane for use in the Pacific warfare.

In the case of Russia, the Nipponese would lay Tokyo and other great cities open to heavy aerial bombardment the moment the war began, and the Reds have strong air forces at neighboring Vladivostok and other Siberian stations.

Russian territory would become available for American air bases. The Soviet submarine fleet at Vladivostok, estimated at 100 boats, would start raiding Japanese waters.

Should Japan attack Russia it would be with the hope that the Muscovites have been so weakened in their long and bloody conflict with Hitler that the added weight of a Jap assault might bring a quick collapse of the Soviet. The Japs also would aim at acquiring military security by conquering Vladivostok and other menacing bases. There further is not unimportant matter of gaining rich new territories.

A SUCCESSFUL conquest of India would be calculated to enable the Nazis and the Japanese to join forces in the Middle East. India itself would be a prize beyond price, and one which Nippon long has coveted.

Whether the Japs will regard the prizes as worth the risk remain to be seen. In any event, if they should undertake any such venture, I believe it will be in the nature of a defensive move is the not unimportant matter of gaining rich new territories.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Congress has finally found itself an A-No. 1 defender.

With election just around the corner and the Boys on The Hill still bubbling over the coals that have been heaped on their heads this spring and summer, the time, to say the least, was ripe.

The Champion of the 77th Congress is the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress. Since the Library of Congress really belongs to congress and since the Legislative Reference Service is just what the name implies—that section of the library that scours the records at request of congressmen for all the myriad details that those gentlemen have to have at their fingertips—the results in this instance are slightly suspect.

NEVERTHELESS, Ernest S. Griffith, the library's LRS director, and his staff certainly have done a job. In a 38-page single-spaced mimeographed monograph, entitled "The War Record of Congress," they've given the Boys on The Hill a pat on the back the likes of which has rarely been delivered to congress, except by congressmen themselves.

Starting off with the simple statement: "The record of the 77th congress in supplying the sinews of war is without parallel," the LRS points out that since 1933, the congresses have appropriated ten billion dollars more for the army and one billion more for the navy than the president has requested in his budget messages. Quoting Rep. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, the report reiterates that this congress "is writing in the conduct of this war one of the brightest chapters of American history."

AFTER that, the LRS really gets down to cases. It documents its claims about budget requests and bigger appropriations for the army and navy. It itemizes its $1,625,000,000 slash in non-defense expenditures, principally through the efforts of the joint house and senate committee headed by Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia.

It bends a knee to Chairman Andrew J. May's house military affairs committee; to Chairman Carl Vinson's house naval affairs investigation committee (which uncovered the excess profits in naval contracts and caused many companies to kick back millions and others to offer to renegotiate contracts); and to Rep. Ross Collins, the long-time champion of a mechanized army, Flying Fortresses, and a powerful air force.

It lists the accomplishments of the Truman committee in uncovering many flaws and frauds in war production; and of the Tolan committee, which made a study of interstate migration of war workers and of the evacuation of enemy aliens from strategic areas.

In heavily documented paragraphs, it clears the skirts of congress of any mud flung up along the Alaskan highway. It shows how congress had NO part or responsibility in the lack of fortifications at Guam; in the failure to get oil pipelines to the eastern seaboard; in the rubber shortage; or in the troubles that now beset small business.

It is truly a remarkable document—one that every student and participant in democratic government should have close at hand.

Man About Manhattan

Titles Mean Nothing

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — This is Manhattan. . . .

A mounted cop in Central park sees another horse coming at a clip that is a little better than fast, and on that horse is a blond who is somewhat less than nonchalant. . . .

So he gets himself set and he stops that horse, and when the girl grins he bawls, "Who taught you to ride?"

"Will Rogers," the blond said.

He did, too. She was Paula Stone, back in town for a revival of "You Can't Take It With You." Will used to spend a lot of time out at Fred Stone's place on Long Island, where he taught all the kids to ride.

Of course, Paula could have slipped a little since then.

TITLES mean next to nothing. I mean, they are like mercury. You have a hard time pinning them down, and holding onto them. Take "The Wind and the Rain." That was the autobiography of one of the best newspapermen England ever produced—Thomas Burke. You'd think that title would be his, but it wasn't. Along came somebody and wrote a musical comedy called "The Wind and the Rain."

Take Carl Carmer, who wrote a book and called it "Stars Fell on Alabama." It wasn't a week after the book became a hit that a song writer had a song by the same title. Once while Carmer was attending a theater a man came out on the stage and said, "I'd like you to meet the man who wrote 'Stars Fell on Alabama.'" and before Carmer could swallow his surprise a musician bobbed up and took a bow.

I see where Lou Walters is about to go into rehearsals with a new musical called "Spice of Life." . . . Not that it matters, but once before there was a show called "Spice of Life." . . . Titles, it seems, mean absolutely nothing. They belong to anybody who uses them.

With pop songs, the title is usually the "clutch" line of the lyric. With a book a title occasionally is ambiguous. With the movies they seldom mean anything at all. They are put there only to snare attention.

MARJORIE KNAPP: She's the seventeen-year-old singing star of "Star and Garter," that opus of the burlesque mold with Gypsy Rose Lee that has scored for Michael Todd.

Ask her how long she's been in show business and she'll tell you 15 years. Her debut was made at the age of two, poised in the strong right hand of Gus Edwards. She weighed 36 pounds, she recalls, and was a heller at the Charleston. "I could even sing and play the sax," she says.

A Farmer's Diary

Old Elm Snag

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AN OLD MAN of my acquaintance is interested in everything, and so he is interesting. He took me with him, the other day, to see a famous elm tree in a woods adjoining one of his farms. My three boys, 11, 7, and 5, went along.

The boys ran up the path to the woodland bluff, in and out among the trees. The sunshine dappled their bare heads and overall-clad figures. Their tanned brown shoulders testified to long hours in the summer sun and frequent dips in the old swimming hole. The old man stopped and watched their effortless race up the steep path, with a pleased smile.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful to be a boy again?" he remarked. "I remember well how light footed I used to be—liked to run just for the fun of running!"

We followed south along a newly washed hollow and came to the mammoth snag of the old elm. The top had been split by a heavy storm. One branch struck westward, the other fell in the opposite direction. Both fallen pieces were near 50 feet in length. We all stood at the base of the mutilated trunk. The old man and one of the boys measured the circumference with a twine string. The yard stick gave the distance around as 16 feet.

"This elm was the giant of the neighborhood for many years," remarked my old friend. "When the sawmill was set in, and the rest of the trees were cut, it was too big for any saw to handle. According to the rings of other stumps around here, it might be 200 years old. I s'pose it was a sapling in George Washington's time."

The children, who had been awestricken by the size of the old ruin—but not for long—climbed up on the massive roots and poked curious fingers into its spongy flank. One boy pointed out the wrinkled, discarded skin of a three-foot blacksnake hanging from an opening about six feet up. Most likely the hollow was the reptile's hibernating chamber of the previous winter.

"I've always marveled," said my old farmer friend, "that a tree so large doesn't exhaust the soil—but I guess it's true of a tree or of anything else that lives, that when it stops growing it begins to die. If the roots do not extend a little every year, into virgin soil—if the top does not enlarge to take in more sun and air, growth ceases.

"A man is like that, too. That's why I like to see a farmer with a flock of boys and girls coming on. My own children and grandchildren give me a stake in the future—a lot of modern interests. I know, of course, I'll soon be in my dotage—but I hope I'll never be a fossil."

CHAPTER XXVIII

"She told me." As she looked at him steadily she could see even in the half darkness of the car how the blood rose in his face. "All right look at me," he said. "Yes, I was—that way—about her. It began the first time I saw her. But Guy got her before I could even meet her—it was so sudden with them. That was why I understood her when I first went to their house. That was what made me so indignant at Guy, and at you . . . It's all over now." He grinned. "Completely cured; case dismissed . . . I wouldn't want a second-hand love anyway. I want a brand new thing, made-to-order for me. When I marry I want a woman who's absorbed in me. I want to love her like the dickens and work for her, but I want her to ask nothing better of life than to live with me and follow my career and answer my telephone—"

He broke off. "Gosh! I sound conceited!"

"I don't believe you are," she said. "And I'm sorry I called you a busybody. You're not. You're just—" she paused, trying to find a phrase that would fit this big young man who was an astute searcher of human nature, a keen, clever medical genius, one minute, then a big gawky boy with the vocabulary of a 10-year-old. "You're—you're—"

"Whatever I am, I'm hungry," he said. How about dinner?"

"Is that an invitation?" she asked. "If I accept you'll have to understand that I'm going to apply to you for a job."

"A job?" he inquired as the car moved off.

"Yes, don't you remember? You were telling Marcia about a job you knew of and when I asked you about it you said I was a dumbbell, and N. G.? That's why I accosted you in the first place. I had to square myself with you so that I could—"

"Of course. I'll tell you about it at the restaurant. It's just around the corner."

The restaurant was a rathskeller with a low, dark-beamed ceiling, and a wide fireplace with a big log crackling in it. After Dr. Ames had ordered a meal of baked ham and sweet potatoes, corn bread and two or three vegetables and pie; and joked with the proprietor, the waitress and the cashier he proceeded to explain.

"The job's at Companion House, a new Americanization project. You couldn't call it that either. It's a place that welcomes new citizens, a sort of 'we're glad to see you, we'll show you what we have, you show us what you've brought effect. A friend of mine, Sonia Justice heads it. It's housed in a fine old mansion, remodeled, with Sonia as resident worker. Sonia had an American father and a Serbian mother. She speaks the Slavic languages. But she needs a helper with other languages, one who can stay with her."

"I speak French like a native." Amy told him. "And Italian like a half native, and German about as well; and I can order a meal or take a train in Spain or Poland—or rather could once."

"Splendid!" he declared. "I'll take you over there tonight."

"I thought you had to call on patients."

"That was when I wanted to get rid of you. Now I don't. You'll fit in perfectly at Companion House. Your looks won't be against you there either. In a home you couldn't help being a trouble-maker . . . Someone ought to marry you and take you out of circulation."

Suddenly he blushed like an awkward school boy.

In the restaurant Dr. Ames finished a piece of apple pie, crusty with sugar and cinnamon and eyed Amy. "Would you be disgusted if I ate another one?"

She shook her head, laughing. "You don't seem greedy. You look like a big machine that needs a lot of fuel, but I imagine you're expensive to keep up."

She was feeling so comfortable and relaxed sitting there in that little rathskeller with its smoky rafters and warm log fire. It had been stimulating to quarrel with him; now it was stimulating to talk with him.

"Do you eat like that at home?" Amy asked.

"I did when I was really at home. I have a swell home—father who's a small-town doctor, swell guy, still practicing. Mother is all bound up in the life of the town—missionary society, P. T. A., book club, such things. I miss 'em like hell. I live in a bachelor apartment now. But I'm not a bachelor by nature. I'm a family man. But I'm cranky about who the other half of my family is."

Amy told him about herself then, of her father and their rare companionship, of her life in Europe, of her father's death, of her failure in the civil service exam in Washington and her coming to Cincinnati, after being persuaded to invest money in the fake Brendermier Conservatory, then of taking the position with the Dillingham family.

But she omitted Paul. To talk of him would have been like rubbing salt in a wound.

He said, with uncanny intuition, "You haven't mentioned a man in all this story. Somehow there's a hole in the story that says there must be a man somewhere."

"There was," she said sharply. "But there isn't!"

"What became of him?"

"He's engaged to another girl."

"I can't imagine that when you're in love with him," he said. "Does he know you're in love with him?"

"I'm not!" Her eyes opened wide. "I hate him!"

Dr. Ames whistled. "So it's as bad as that!' He filled a pipe and took a few puffs. "Sometimes though, hate works as an antidote for love. Perhaps now you'll get over it."

"I didn't ask you for a diagnosis."

He puffed at his pipe for awhile, staring into the fire. "Well, we'd better go over to Companion House and talk to Sonia."

* * *

Companion House was down in the bowl of the city, an old mansion, one of a row, differing from its neighbors only in that every window was alight and rows of salmon-colored geranium nodded through the polished glass at the darkness of the street.

A group of children, playing on the steps, parted to let them pass. A tall handsome woman with white hair opened the door to their ring.

"Sonia, this is Amy Tudor," Dr Ames announced. "She's the answer to all your prayers. She speaks French and Italian and German and a smattering of other languages. And, as you can see, she's not at all a repulsive personality."

"He introduces me as if I were a patent medicine," Amy laughed.

"Bennet always disregards the amenities when he's trying to put over an idea," Sonia Justice said.

Bennet? Of course, that was Dr. Ames' given name. Amy realized, with a start, that she'd forgotten he had one. But she did remember that he was Dr. B. F. Ames in the telephone book.

"But French, did you say?" Miss Justice asked. "There's a lady here whom I wish you could talk with. She's at the party. The Slavic group is giving a party for the other groups. Would you both like to come?"

"We'd love it," they both said.

They did. There was gay chintz in the dining room and an assortment of miscellaneous chairs brightly painted. There were candles on the table—and a samovar, and tea in tall glasses.

There was a babble of English, with many accents, soft sibiliant, slurring accents, bright staccatos, soft gutterals.

Amy was right at home. In her childhood she had played with children who spoke these languages on the warm white beaches of the Black sea; she had talked with such women bleaching their linens on rocks beside streams; she had watched their lively dances on village greens. In a moment she was one of them—laughing, chattering, as she put a spoonful of strawberry jam in her glass of tea.

Though he was no linguist, Dr. Bennet Ames was equally at home. He called plump little Mrs. Igvatski "Mamochka," teasing her about the red caviar he was spreading on his bread. "Isn't there too much fish in this jam, Mamochka?" He reminded Mrs. Cellini that she had invited him to a spaghetti dinner. But there was one woman before whom he bowed; he was the very soul of courtliness. And Amy mentally applauded him.

This lady was delicate and pinched and very proud from much suffering. Sonia Justice introduced Amy to her saying, "Miss Tudor speaks French." The woman addressed Amy in exquisite French. But because she was a refugee in a strange land her reticence gave way to confidences. She had lost everything. She had no friends, no relatives anywhere. She had tried scrubbing. Amy looked at the fragile hands in wonder, and pity. Now the lady wanted to teach French. If she could find a place in a family, to teach a child.

"I know of just such a place," Amy told her. "It isn't open now. But it will be soon. A little girl. I have been teaching her myself. She is unsettled because she has broken her hip—"

"Oh, but perhaps I know who she is," Madame explained. "Can it be the little girl Mademoiselle Fairbairne has spoken of?"

All the zest went out of the party for Amy. She had thought she had left behind Marcia and all that concerned her. She had thought she was entering into a new world.

But Madame continued, "Mademoiselle Fairbairne has charge of our first-aid classes. She speaks French—not as you do, but as one who has learned it carefully. But she is very lovely. And so happily in love. She tells me she will marry her young man when he has his first leave from the army. I have advised her to do so even if she must urge him a little. Men are proud, I tell her, and hard to tie down. Better to marry while love is warm.

"Yes," Amy whispered.

Then Bennet Ames called, "Time to go home, Miss Tudor."

As he came down the steps he drew her arm through his and said enthusiastically, "Sonia wants you. She's crazy about you. She can't talk to you tonight, but she wants you to start in right away."

How Many Suits In A Clothing Store?

Did you ever look through the complete stock of a big men's clothing store? They have lots of colors, patterns and sizes, don't they? Why? Of course you know the answer. There are lots of different kinds of people.

Yet it may interest you to know that in making clothing in the big ready-to-wear factories, they are pretty well able to please and fit hundreds of thousands of men in "average groups." They make certain standard sizes. They use certain styles. They find that thousands of men in different parts of the country take exactly the same measurements and exactly the same pattern. That's what happens under "the law of averages."

In recent years much use has been made of this very valuable "law of averages" in learning how to serve the public better. Instead of depending upon the opinions of a few men considered to be experts, it has been found advisable to get facts by checking with thousands of people and thereby securing an absolutely accurate result through "the law of averages."

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED IN INDICTMENT

Ex-Clerk at Ashland Charged With Taking Funds; Eight Others Are Cited.

ASHLAND—An indictment for embezzlement was returned against Charles W. Good, former clerk of the city water works department, by Ashland county grand jurors completing a two-day session yesterday. Good, who served as water works clerk from Sept. 1, 1938 to Dec. 31, 1941, was indicated for the embezzling of $3,845.33 and converting the funds to his own use, during a period extending from the 1st of July, 1941, to Dec. 10, 1941.

A confession admitting the embezzlement of $3,808.21 of the water works funds and signed by Good last July 14, was made public yesterday at the close of the grand jury session by State Examiner Claren F. Risser, who found the shortage during his audit of municipal accounts during the summer. The amount of $3,845.33 returned by the grand jury yesterday is the amount of the finding made by the state examiner against Good and the Maryland Casualty Company, surety for Good.

The report of Risser covering nine pages, lists 517 accounts from which Good is alleged to have diverted payments to his own use.

Good, in his confession signed in the presence of Mayor Glenn R. Haller, and Mrs. Grace O. Fair, city clerk, admitted the collection of $3,808.21 during the months of July and August 1941, which he did not deposit to the city treasury, but diverted to his own personal use.

In the report returned by the grand jury yesterday with eight other indictments in addition to Good's, the grand jurors recommended that further inquiry be made into the accounting system of the water works department to obtain better control of the receipts of the office including a daily balance and bank deposits.

Good was appointed water works clerk during the term of Mayor W. Art Mason and continued in that office while Howard S. Lutz served as mayor for one term. At the beginning of this year when Mayor Haller took office he was succeeded by Mrs. Margaret Mallou, who is the present clerk.

Other indictments returned yesterday were those against Howard Gentry and James Austin of Cleveland and Francis Williams of Mansfield for attempted breaking and entering of the Arnholt Clothing Company of Loudonville on Aug. 30. The three, all colored, were arrested by Marshal R. G Schnittke of Loudonville, and they have been held in the county jail here since Aug 31 when they were bound over to the grand jury in the court of Mayor Edward Smith of Loudonville under $5,000 bond each.

Edward and John Lawrence of Canada, brothers, were indicted and charged with stealing an automobile on Aug. 9 in Ashland. The automobile belonged to Clarence Dilgard of Ashland and the Lawrence brothers were accused of having pushed it to Countryside and of having tried to remove a tire when apprehended.

Carl John Clark of Ashland was indicted for larceny in the theft of an automatic shotgun from Adam Dunham of Ashland on May 28 He is at liberty on bond.

Roy Anderson of Canton was indicted for failure to support a minor child. Given a hearing in the court of Justice J. H. Armstrong on May 6, he was released from custody on bond of $200.

The ninth indictment returned was sub rosa. Twenty-seven witnesses were examined in 13 cases. Four "no bills" were returned.

TWO GALION MEN ESCAPE INJURY IN TRAIN WRECK

Physician, Air Cadet Among Passengers on Limited That Rammed Freight.

GALION — When the Southwestern Limited, New York Central passenger train collided with a freight train east of Charleston, Ill., two Galion men were among the passengers. Dr. Malcolm E. Switzer and Aviation Cadet Newton Liggett were uninjured in the wreck which cost the lives of three trainmen and injured several passengers.

Dr. Switzer who was enroute to report to Kelly Field where he is assigned to the medical corps of the U. S. Army air force, was in the lounge car with Cadet Liggett at the time of the accident. He assisted in caring for the injured.

Cadet Liggett was returning to Ellington Field, Houston, Tex., where he is in navigation school. He had recently been home on a furlough.

PLAN DRIVE

Bucyrus Chest Directors Set Oct. 19-24 For Campaign.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus Community Chest board of directors set Oct. 19-24 as the date for the annual fund campaign when they met with a citizens group Wednesday night to consider adding a War Chest appeal to the drive.

Influenced by the citizens group, directors voted not to add an appeal from outside agencies at this time.

A budget committee of C. D Albright, E. C. Crall and W G Beebe was named to consider the budgets of the participating agencies, who have been asked to submit their budgets to the committee before the next meeting of directors Sept. 29.

Richman Brothers Clothes
are as Fine as Ever

Many of our customers ask us, "Are your clothes as good as they were before the war?" Our answer is "Yes"—emphatically.

True, there are government restrictions on the production of woolens. But, we bought ours many months ago, and still have plenty of all-wool suits.

Remember, too, that good, honest workmanship built this great business and our matchless reputation—and the same Richman Tailoring Family is still doing the same good job of clothes making.

Now is the best possible time to buy. The selection is bigger, more complete. The store is less rushed, and you will get more attention and better fitting service.

SOUTH PLAYS BIG PART IN ARMS PROGRAM

Industrial Development Is on Upswing; Backed By U. S. Contracts.

(By United Press)

RALEIGH, N. C.—War is speeding the march of factories to the South. The region, long neglected in the apportioning of industrial development has become a major redoubt on America's production line for victory.

Trade magazines, regional WPB officials, the North Carolina Industrial and Conservation commission, an economist and the census, all agree that "the South is moving forward at an accelerated pace in the development of her resources."

In 1939—the date of the latest available census—"the value of its manufactured products was $12,000,000,000 or $500,000,000 higher than in 1937 and surpassing even the 1929 high," a recent copy of the "Blue Book of Southern Progress" stated.

"That of the rest of the country in 1939," the same periodical added, "fell below the 1937 level and was $10,000,000,000 under the 1929 figure."

Professor Paul Barnett, University of Tennessee economist and author of several papers on Southern industry, here to investigate North Carolina's war output, said government-sponsored power projects have provided the South with the great quantities of electric current demanded by industrialists, enabling it to attract new plants.

"In Tennessee," he pointed out, "promotionists with the help of TVA power have been able to develop large sections of formerly figuratively-barren country into factory towns."

"Virginia and Maryland during the past few years have made wonderful gains in value of their industries and Texas, according to 1939 statistics, was next to North Carolina—the South's industrial citadel—in value added by manufacturing."

Barnett saw North Carolina's lead "dangerously threatened by progressive Virginia and Tennessee" and other states. A study of war contract allocations from June 1940 through March, 1942, added weight to his prediction.

Eight other states — Texas, Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee and Florida, Missouri, Alabama, Louisiana outranked North Carolina in value added during the 22-month period in gains from war supply contracts.

Seventeen Southern states were allotted $10,433,977,000 worth of the $55,841,351,000 total of various government contracts.

The largest outlays went to Texas, Maryland and Virginia for aircraft and ships. Texas got $1,860,305,000; Maryland, $1,398,509,000 and Virginia, $1,143,755,000.

The North Carolina Industrial commission pointed out, however, that the state's main industries—tobacco and textiles—through little affected by war contracts, are "running at top capacity" and turning out several hundred million dollars worth of goods.

The total value of products manufactured in the state, not including war orders, was listed as more than $1,300,000,000 in the 1939 census.

A late issue of "Manufacturers Record," citing the expansion of the South's chemical industry and construction program, said the section was skyrocketing "to new top records" in these fields.

"For the past two years a great part of the energies of the chemical industry, the army and navy munitions board and the war production board and its predecessors, has been spent in building a war explosions industry where none existed before."

"And because the South provides the source of a major part of the necessary raw materials, a considerable part of this new industry has been or is being built in the South where, in normal times almost one-third of the country's chemical products originate."

War department building contracts let during the first four months of the year, the magazine said, reached the unprecedented total of $1,427,710,000 in Southern states.

"At the same time last year the total stood at $661,129,000 and 1941 was a banner construction year."

WILL SPEAK

BUCYRUS—Dr. B. A. Stevens, assistant secretary of research of the Ohio Education association and Dr. G. P. Cahoon of the Ohio State college of education will be the speakers at the annual fall meeting of the Crawford County Rural Teachers association at Sulphur Springs Saturday morning.

An added feature will be a showing of the sound picture "Americans All" featuring Julien Bryan, noted traveler and lecturer.

NEW PASTOR

GALION—Succeeding the late Rev. O. E. Knepp as pastor of the United Brethren church, Rev. and Mrs. Carl V. Roop have taken over the parsonage on East Walnut street.

Rev. Roop came to Galion from Findlay. He was previously pastor of the First United Brethren church in Marion for 12 years.

THEATERS

Air Spectacle.

"Eagle Squadron," the authentic behind-the-scenes story of the actual experiences of many American aviators who preceded their own country's entrance into the war by joining the RAF's Eagle Squadron, will furnish thrills on the Ohio screen starting Saturday. The picture also brings to the screen for the first time the widespread activities of British women in wartime. Robert Stack and Diana Barrymore, youngest member of the "royal family," head the cast that includes Jon Hall, Eddie Albert and Nigel Bruce.

Romantic Triangle.

A new concept of the romantic triangle is introduced in "The Talk of the Town," a new comedy co-starring Cary Grant, Jean Arthur and Ronald Colman, opening at the Madison Saturday. The three main characters are a fugitive from justice played by Grant, a charming young lady and a bearded law-school dean portrayed by Miss Arthur and Colman. Glenda Farrell and Edgar Buchanan are in the cast. A Hal Roach feature, "Hay Foot," with William Tracy, shares the bill.

Gangster Plot.

Faye Emerson plays the lead in "Lady Gangster," the film opening today at the Ritz. The story deals with a woman who turns criminal for revenge when she discovers that the men she loves wouldn't hesitate to turn her over to the police. Julie Bishop and Frank Wilcox are in the cast. Frontier thrills of the old west furnish excitement in John Mack Brown's latest action drama, "Stagecoach Buckaroo," the second attraction.

Timely Subject.

Racketeers who capitalize on the tire situation motivate the plot of the Park attraction, "Rubber Racketeer," with Ricardo Cortez, Bill Henry and Rochelle Hudson. Cortez appears as the racketeer behind a scheme for selling and re-selling new tires. Henry and Miss Hudson have the roles of a young couple, workers in a defense factory, who aid the police in apprehending the criminals. "Sunset on the Desert," the co-feature, presents Roy Rogers and Lynne Carver.

The $64 Questions.

(What's Your Gossip I. Q.?)

Isn't it true that another—and even more famous—film actress has emulated Linda Darnell by moving out of the beautiful home she shared with mama and into a "bachelor girl" apartment? . . . Can't you think of a wonderful list of actual characters to take the title roles in the forthcoming show called "Heels Together"? . . . Wouldn't it be just too pat if Judge Hardy (Lewis Stone) succeeded in effecting an eleventh-hour reconciliation between Mickey and his Ava?

Kilgallen

Will Sherman Billingsley inaugurate the fall night club fighting season by throwing out the first customer? . . . Did you know that the basement of a nearby drug store is virtually an annex of the Stage Door canteen?

* * *

Isn't it amazing how no "leg art" on Clark Gable ever came out of Hollywood during his years in pictures—then he's photographed in a track suit his first month in the army? . . . Is Mme. Berthe, the theatrical designer, really a man named Mischa? . . . If Mayor LaGuardia gives us feminine traffic cops will they hold up traffic to powder their noses? . . . Is Monty Woolley's home in Saratoga Springs designed for a rest, the waters, or the horses? . . . Will Mapy (pronounced Moppy) Cortez be the new Lupe Velez? . . . What's with Carol Bruce's love life at this point? . . . What male movie star do you suppose will become the favorite "pin-up boy" in the barracks of the WAACs?

When do you suppose Ella Logan and Freddie Finklehoffe are going to stop all the finessing and really get married, as they started out to do that sunny afternoon at the Pierre many months ago? . . . Didn't you think "Janie" was practically as good as "Junior Miss"? . . . Will they form an orchestra of the ten bandleaders now in the army or would the results be too, too terrible? . . . On the heels of Hollywood's "very young groom" cycle, won't there be another epidemic of nuptials, this time featuring men who have just been divorced?

Wasn't that sweet of Eddie (Leon and Eddie's) Davis to send a motion picture camera to Mathea Merryfield, the ailing dancer, at Saranac lake—and wasn't it typical of him not to say a word about it? . . . Is Corp. Irving Berlin in line for the Congressional Medal of Honor, and doesn't he rate it, the way George M. Cohan did? . . . Since they accepted Gene Autry in the air corps, do you suppose they'll switch Jimmy Doolittle to the calvary? . . . Why doesn't Zorina wave bye-bye to the flickers and come back to Broadway where she's always been a dream girl?

Isn't New York's dimout a thrilling—if spooky—sight from the top of the Empire State? . . . Wouldn't it be a fine time to bring back a bicycle built for two—the bicycle, not the song? . . . What's this about Clifford Odets car crashing into government property on the coast. . . . Wasn't it lovely the way Joan Edwards sang "He Wears a Pair of Silver Wings" on the Hit Parade? . . . Did you know that her friends (and she has so many) are worried because George Brent's moodiness makes Ann Sheridan unhappy? . . . Do those new hats with the steep, steep crowns and the squat brims make you look a little silly too. . . . If they don't do something about those subway lights, won't a lot of people need seeing-eye dogs?

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Glamour factory at war:

The big bus pulls up at a street crossing in a "city" that wasn't there a few quick months ago. It's like a boom town, swarming with population—but not roaring. Around this intersection are grouped, in grey buildings, various shops and stores, soft drink parlors, recreation rooms, a chapel. One of the many signs posted around announces the preview showing of "Wake Island." Free, the sign says.

Coons

There's a crowd on hand as the bus pulls in Uniforms. Filed greens mostly. Summer service khakis. An occasional dressy "blue." And seeming oddly out of place, one or two bluejackets. Out of place because this is the U. S. Marine corps' Camp Elliott, at San Diego.

It's the faces, more than the uniforms, that are impressive. Tanned, clear-eyed, healthy, they're a tribute to stiff Marine training. The boys look on, some curiously, some grinning, some peering eagerly for any movie stars that might be along. . . . You get a definite impression that when you tell it to the Marines the situation will be well in hand.

Transfer to a Marine bus and go to the new amphitheater. Through the windows, all around, you see acre after acre of grey dormitories, Marines at ease in the doorways and streets. It's that time of day. . . . The tiers of wooden benches on the hillsides command a view of other grease-wood-covered hills beyond the big stage. The boys already are filling up the theater, coming a-running from all directions On the stage there's a piano and a couple of mikes. . . . Out runs a bouncing gent, the M.C. . . . That's George Riley. . . . His patter is quick, lively, and he gets 'em. . . . Martha O'Driscoll and Lucia Carroll take bows, and Betty Hutton knocks herself around as usual in a couple of song-shouts. . . June Havoc wows 'em with patter and song. . . . Bill Bendix. . . . Max Terhune . . . Helene Keller (Mrs. Riley) sings arias—broken up by Riley's patter. . . . But the best part of the show isn't on the stage—it's the audience. It gives out with whoops, grins, shouts, handclapping

That's all, folks. . . . The crowd scatters. . . . Brian Donlevy, star of the film, rushes up—been detained at another show at the base. . . . June Havoc has to get back to Hollywood to practice ambulance work for a test. She can't—the dim-out will catch her—so the general lets her practice on a camp wagon. . . . Reception at the Officers' Club—but that's not for privates, of course. . . . then mess — broiled chicken, plenty of good food, coffee, lemonade. . . .

4 SENTENCED TO PRISON AS WHITE SLAVERS

Enter Guilty Pleas at Trial as Girls Testify; Court Denounces Defendants.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Four white slave traders today were cut off from lucrative operations extending into five states by prison sentences ranging from seven to 12 years.

Suddenly pleading guilty in the fourth day of their federal court trial on charges of conspiring to operate a white slave ring and transporting girls for prostitution, the four were scathingly denounced by Judge Emerich B. Freed, as "the lowest form of humanity."

Sentenced to 12 years was Louis Peter Morei, 51-year-old Clevelander described by Assistant U. S. District Attorney Roy C. Scott as head of the ring.

Carl (Ted) Bruell, 36, of Canton, and Jack Johnson, 38, of Amsterdam, N. Y., and New York City, each received 10-year sentences and Frank Bruell, Carl's 29-year-old brother, was sentenced to a seven-year term. All will be committed to a federal penitentiary, probably next week.

Their guilty pleas interrupted sordid testimony concerning threats against the prostitutes they transported, and left a Lorain woman—Vera Sili, alleged operator of a white slave "trading post"—to stand trial alone.

During the four days of testimony, Vivian Clark, an attractive blond, related that Carl Bruell induced her to become a prostitute and placed her in "call houses" and brothels in New York, Akron and Canton, O. She said he had repeatedly threatened her.

Another pretty 21-year-old witness, permitted to mask her identity behind the "professional" name of Joyce Foley, testified Morei had threatened to "scar me up so no other man would want me" if she left him.

She said she "worked" for Morei in New York City, Cleveland, Sandusky, Akron, Lorain, Canton and Zanesville, O., after he had paid her $500 hospital bill.

Both witnesses told of turning over large sums of money to the defendants. "Miss Foley" estimated her New York earnings at $600 weekly and Miss Clark said she averaged about $135 a week at Canton.

PLAN MEETINGS

Women's Home Council to Map Fall, Winter Sessions.

Members of the Richland County Women's Home council will plan a schedule of women's home demonstration meetings in county communities for this fall and winter at a session Saturday at 2 p. m. in the county agent's office at the courthouse.

Miss Elizabeth Bay, county home demonstration agent, said the 28 members who have been asked to attend the meeting were chosen as representatives of their communities several months ago.

The series of meetings during the fall and winter will deal with household economics and other subjects of interest to rural women, Miss Bay said.

DISPUTE SENT TO LABOR BOARD

Galion Labor Controversy Certified by Secretary Perkins.

GALION — A dispute between the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing company and the AFL Machinists and AFL Molders and Foundry workers involving approximately 250 employes was certified to the war labor board yesterday by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, dispatches from Washington said today.

The dispute involves demands for wage increases and a union shop.

J. L. Connors, vice-president and general manager of the company, dismissed the dispute today as "minor" but declined to give details on the wage demands. Ralph Rust, international representative of the machinists in Mansfield, could not be reached for comment.

FOUR FACING SPEED COUNTS

One Motorist Charged With Speeding Through School Zone at 40 MPH.

One autoist was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with speeding through a school zone at dismissal time while three others were cited for speeding 40 miles or more in 25-mile zones.

George Washington Ward, Bucyrus, will appear in traffic court Sept. 23 to explain his alleged 40-mile speed through a school zone at Park avenue west and Stewart avenue.

Felix Palasky, 210 Orange street, is accused of speeding 40 miles an hour on Newman street while Kelsey I. Berry, 248 Greenlawn avenue, is accused of driving at excessive speed on Wayne street. Both are cited to appear Sept. 23.

Nicholas J. Kunz, 21 Orchard street, was charged with driving 42 miles an hour on North Main street near Sixth street. He will appear Sept. 26.

Extension of 25-mile zones through residential areas was announced earlier in the week by Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals. Maximum speed in other residence areas except in the vicinity of schools, is made mandatory at 35 miles under the state traffic code, Boals says.

"Within reason, we intend to bear down firmly against speeding in conformity with federal rubber-gasoline voluntary rationing recommendations," the commissioner declared.

Find They're Wed To Same Man But They're Friends

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—A pair of 'teen-aged girls who compared notes and found they were both wed to the same man were fast friends today "and from now on."

A bigamy warrant was issued against James E. Watson, 21, of Cincinnati after his two wives, Mrs. Millie Marsh Watson, 17, and Mrs. Doris Ward Watson, 16, found that he was married to them both.

Doris Ward Watson learned from her husband's cousin that he "had another wife and a child living on Rice street." She said that she then "hunted all Wednesday evening" until she found Mollie Marsh Watson.

"We are good friends now," Doris said. "We're going to be friends from now on."

Mollie alleged she married Watson in December 1939 and added that she had received no money from him for support of herself and her two-year-old son since last Christmas. Doris was married to Watson in Newport, Ky., Saturday night.

BURIED TODAY

Mrs. Elizabeth Keilhafer, 84, Former Mansfielder, Interned Here.

Brief services for Mrs. Elizabeth Heiser Keilhafer, 84, widow of George Keilhafer, former Mansfield resident, were held at the grave in the Mansfield cemetery this afternoon. Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor of St. John's Evangelical church, officiated.

Mrs. Keilhafer died Wednesday in Naperville, Ill., after a brief illness. The body was brought to the Wappner Funeral home in Mansfield. Several nieces and nephews survive.

ASKS HOUSEWIVES AND STUDENTS TO HELP SAVE OHIO FRUIT CROP

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Governor Bricker today asked Ohio housewives and school children to go to the rescue of the state's heavy fruit and vegetable crops threatened with heavy loss because of labor shortages

He issued the appeal after State Senator Fred Adams of Bowling Green advised him that a large portion of the northern Ohio tomato crop is ripe in the fields and may be lost unless picked immediately.

"I appeal to high school students, to housewives and anyone who can possibly leave their regular duties to answer this immediate call to service," Bricker said, and advised interested persons to contact the nearest office of the United States employment service, local canneries or farmers.

He said 22 canning factories in the state have appealed for from 38 to 150 workers each in order to handle the fruit and vegetable crops.

Canneries at Clyde, Rockford, Bowling Green, Fremont, Weston, Mendon, Celina, Zane City, New Madison, Bradford, St. Marys, Delphos, Leipsic and Wapakoneta were among those who issued the appeal.

EX-CHIEF DIES

H. D. Fetzer, Policeman 20 Years, Dead at Ashland.

ASHLAND — Former police chief and member of the Ashland city police force for 20 years, Herman D. Fetzer, 69, died yesterday afternoon while sitting on the front porch of his home here. He was listening to a ball game at the time of his death which his family physician attributed to a heart attack.

Born in Burbank, Mr. Fetzer came to Ashland 40 years ago and joined the police force in 1920. Former Mayor W. Art Mason appointed him police chief Jan. 1, 1936. He retired Mar. 20, 1940, after serving as chief for four years.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Harold Sprinkle, Ashland, and Mrs. Hazel Flint, Burbank; one son Lawrence, Columbus; one sister, Mrs. Ballard Myers, Ashland; and one brother, Harvey Fetzer, Galion

Rev. Paul P. Ansbaugh will conduct funeral services at Gilbert chapel Saturday at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in Ashland cemetery.

TAKES NEW POST

Church Organist and Music Teacher Goes to Glendale.

After serving as organist of Park Avenue Baptist church since February, 1937, and as instructor of music at John Simpson junior high school since September of that year, Lawrence Frank leaves this evening for a new post in Glendale, O.

In the Cincinnati suburb he will be music director for the public schools and organist and choir master of Grace Episcopal church. Mrs. Frank and her mother, Mrs. Mary Flint, will remain at their home here, 143 West Third street, until Oct. 1.

The Baptist church music committee is now negotiating for a successor. Guest organists will appear in the meantime. Mrs. Fred Lewis of Mansfield, will preside at the organ next Sunday and on the following Sunday. Robert Early will be guest director of the choir for the next four Sundays.

Laff-a-Day

"—No, Mr. Benson, take another week, if you like. Everything's going just as if you were here!"

Patrolman Robert E. Robnolte speaks with the voice of authority. There's no doubt about it. Last night he went into a restaurant with his young son, Peter, and sat down at a table. At the same time a strange dog got into the restaurant. Peter immediately climbed down from his chair, walked over and preceeded to make friends wtih the dog. "Come here," called the patrolman, tapping the chair. "That dog might bite. Come here and sit down." The dog came over at once jumped up on the chair and sat down meekly. Young Peter just grinned.

An apple tree at the home of W. O. Leedy, 470 Woodward avenue, is showing pink blossoms along with a crop of apples. Although diseased or dying apple trees occasionally blossom in the fall, Leedy believes that this one is blossoming out of season because a part of the tree was burned in a trash fire this summer. The blossoms, as fragrant and healthy as any that appear in May, are largely on the side of the tree that was burned.

Social life for the Yanks stationed in the South Seas is something to write home about—take a Mansfield soldier's word for that. The natives at New Caledonia, South Sea atoll, are friendly folks, Don Gestenslager writes to his wife. They staged a dance for 300 soldiers not so long ago and the only thing lacking were the girls. Only seven hostesses were available all together, the Mansfielder explained. Of this group two were over 50, two were under 12, and the other three were natives. The first four were white. "While the dance could not be termed an outstanding success," Gerstenslager said, "the girls at least got a good rush."

Stepping on a bumble bee's nest isn't exactly a picnic in the opinion of H. J. Dotson, principal of John Simpson Junior High school. Dotson and school attendance officer, John Eisaman, were tramping over Dotson's farm recently when the principal heard the angry battery of the bees and realizing what had happened, he shot across the field without extending an invitation to his companion. Eisaman, however, took the cue and started in Dotson's direction. Both escaped the wrath of the bees, Dotson said, still laughing over the way Eisaman shouted, as he ran, "Look out rabbit, or you'll get stepped on."

KIDNAPED WIFE SETS OFFICERS ON MAN'S TRAIL

Young Companion of Fugitive Surrenders When Police Posse Approaches.

(By United Press)

ASHLAND, Ky.—A posse hunted in the hilly country surrounding Ashland today for one of two convicts who kidnaped a federal reformatory official's wife, placed her in the trunk of her car and drove away from her home at Chillicothe, O.

The courage of Mrs. R. W. Meyer, 31, the kidnaped woman, resulted in the capture of Robert Cote, 17, Willimantic, Conn., but Jack H. Triplett, 21, Cromona, Ky., his companion, escaped into the hills, where a posse of about 125 men, led by bloodhounds, searched today.

Cote and Triplett, both trusties who had been serving terms for automobile theft at the Chillicothe federal reformatory, came to Mrs. Meyer's home yesterday to clean the garage. Mrs. Meyer, the wife of a reformatory clerk, came out to move her car. Her daughter, Diana, three, was with her.

"Triplett had a gun," Mrs. Meyer told Ashland police last night. "He forced me to crawl into the trunk of the car and was going to take Diana, too, but I talked him out of it. They told me they were going to escape."

The convicts headed south and crossed the Ohio river about 32 miles below Ashland on route 23. Some time before they reached the Kentucky town, they removed Mrs. Meyer from the trunk. She was bruised and shaken, but otherwise unharmed.

At a filling station in Ashland, they stopped for gasoline and Mrs. Meyer grabbed the steering wheel and screamed for help. Cote and Triplett leaped from the car and ran into the hills. The station attendant called police.

They found the two convicts hiding in the hills and ordered them to surrender. Triplett fired two wild shots, then ran. Cote offered no resistance.

Chief Charles F. Howard of the Ashland police said reformatory officials were notified and bloodhounds were sent to the scene. City police, sheriff's deputies, state police and prison wardens beat the wooded hills unsuccessfully during the night. Howard said an airplane would be used in the hunt today.

Cote will be charged with violating the Lindbergh kidnap law, Howard said, inasmuch as the victim was taken across a state line.

Navy Mans Lonely Island Off California as Invasion Guard

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Lonely, wind-swept islands off the Southern California coast, once the paradise of fishermen and hunters, today have become the watchdogs of invasion.

Perched on high points of unobstructed view are U. S. navy patrols — modern Robinson Crusoes armed with spy-glasses and radios who constantly scan sea and sky for enemy submarines or aircraft.

Only volunteers are accepted for this lonesome but vital job, and men must be familiar with silhouettes of enemy ships and planes and know the elements of weather observation to qualify.

Cover 200 Miles.

Stationed on islands scattered along 200 miles of coastline, the invasion guards receive mail and provisions every two weeks. Often they serve for more than two months without seeing the mainland on a fortnight's leave.

On some islands, the navy men live with ranchers who raise sheep, cattle and horses. On others, they live in specially constructed navy quarters. Roads have been built in some places, and the navy version of the jeep is used for transportation.

Off-duty, the men enjoy unspoiled beaches and fishing which are the envy of their mainland comrades.

Storms Leave Jap Flotsam.

The wind-patterned sands, free of the familiar litter of tin cans and papers, offer instead collectors' items in stones and shells. Clams and abalones, some containing small pearls, are available at low tide Fishing is excellent. And the crags and slopes offer plentiful game.

Every storm leaves new surprises on the beaches, including glass balls, used as floats by Japanese fishermen, which have drifted 5,000 miles across the Pacific.

The floats are harmless curiosities — but if their owners ever come after them, the boys of the island patrols are ready and waiting to touch off a reception the invaders will never forget.

SURVEY SHOWS THAT GIRLS LIKE TO DRAW TO STRAIGHTS

(By United Press)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Can you imagine dragigng your wife along to a poker party? Well, the practice may become quite common before many years have passed.

A survey among 320 college students, male and female, from five universities, reveals the interesting fact that the girls rather like to play poker. In fact, they also like to watch horse races and get all riled over political problems, just as the men do.

Dr. Clifford R. Adams, assistant professor of psychology at Pennsylvania State college, found out these things through his personal audit test, devised by him and Dr. W. M. Lepley.

Men, he says, aren't so much different from girls. They both like to act in movies, perform on the radio and play golf and bridge.

But there are differences. Men like to be big shots. They go in for such things as being master of ceremonies in a night club; judging beauty contests; leading a search for a lost child, flying an airplane, and interviewing sales prospects.

And the men are adventurous. They expressed interest in exploring polar regions, strenuous sports, prize fights, watching big fires, riding on roller coasters and — hold your hats — being marooned on a desert island with a pleasant companion.

Deep down inside, the gals are still just as the men like to picture them.

Social activities and charitable work are their forte. The co-eds said they enjoyed entertaining and going to picnics, masquerade parties and full-dress affairs. They like to make long-distance telephone calls, dancing, seeing love stories at the movies and collecting money for charity. And they prefer the big city to country life. —

CONSTITUTION DAY IS OBSERVED BY D. A. R.

Mary Washington and Jared Mansfield Chapters Have Joint Luncheon Meeting at Westbrook Thursday; Hear Columbus Woman.

ON THURSDAY at Westbrook Country club, a joint luncheon meeting of the Mary Washington and Jared Mansfield chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution celebrated Constitution day. The program was arranged by Mrs. David Feiser, program chairman of the Mary Washington chapter. The red, white and blue color scheme was carried out in lovely flowers that centered the luncheon tables.

Following the luncheon, the members and guests assembled in the spacious living room where the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Feiser, vice-regent, in the absence of Mrs. David N. Roller, chapter regent. Devotionals were conducted by Mrs. H. H. Sanford of the Mary Washington chapter. The salute to the flag was led by Mrs. A. E. Courtney of the Jared Mansfield group. Mrs. Brinkerhoff Spear, regent of the Jared Mansfield chapter, extended greetings and offered best wishes for a successful year.

Mrs. Feiser, in introducing the speaker, Miss Amanda Thomas of Columbus, spoke of the aim of both chapters being one in these times of stress. Miss Thomas is state chairman of special legislation for the Daughters of the American Revolution. She gave an informative and interesting talk, her theme being changes in the home and war-time efficiency in the home first. She emphasized "learning to do without and learning to use what we have." She pointed out the many valuable inventions coming from research, some of which are used only in the war effort at the present time, but which will be available after the war for domestic use. In closing, Miss Thomas urged her listeners to "stand firm for democracy."

Seventy-six members attended the meeting. A non-resident member, Mrs. John Tucker, of Shreveport, La., was present for the occasion. The next meeting of the Mary Washington chapter will be held Oct. 12 at the home of Mrs. Feiser, Russell road, at 1 p. m. Miss Cloude Blake will be chairman for the Oct. 2 meeting of the Jared Mansfield chapter. "National Defense" will be the program topic.

Church Group Has Farewell Party For the Franks

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Frank, who will leave soon to make their home in Glendale, suburb of Cincinnati' a reception was given last evening by 34 members of the senior choir and music committee of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Games and group singing were enjoyed in the parlors of the church.

Mr. Frank has accepted a position as supervisor of music in the Glendale schools and will be minister of music at the Episcopal church. The group presented a gift to Mr. and Mrs. Frank. Pink and white asters and dahlias were used in the decorations. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

The committee in charge of arrangements was comprised of Mrs. Wayne Williams, Miss Edna May Boswell and Mrs. Sherman Skaggs.

Autumn Styles Are Smart, Sparkling

Top left, check daytime dress; below, black wool suit; right, forest green wool suit.

By International Illustrated News Service

Slim, trim, youthful and sparkling are the new autumn fashions in suits and dresses. They are guaranteed to give just the right uplift to the spirits of the girls whose sweethearts are in the services, and to the aforesaid boy friends on furlough, who must keep up their courage for their sweeties, their home folks, themselves and comrades.

Three of these pepper - upper suits are shown in the protographs above. For instance, young Alexis Smith, of the films, is pictured modeling a stunning daytime dress of black and white check material. It has a slim skirt, bulky top, a fold-over sash of self fabric, and an interesting tucked treatment.

Very stunning is the cool weather suit worn by Margot Stevenson, radio actress. It's in black wool, with non-priority trimming, plastic buttons, a notched collar and patch pockets of ocelet. To add to the titilating effect of the suit, it is worn with a telescopic turban of red and black novelty striped wool fabric, and a large matching muff is carried by Miss Stevenson.

The youthful suit with trim, slim lines, worn by radio actress, Renne Terry, is in that delightful shade—forest green. The material is wool with gay contrast of bright red soutache braid(a military touch, eh?) and silver button detail. It's designed to be worn for the first cool fall days, and later to be topped by a swagger coat.

School Mothers Hear Selections

Twenty-six members attended the Thursday afternoon meeting of the West Fifth Street Mothers' club at the school, with Mrs. Charles Snyder conducting the business. Mrs. Tom Davis resigned as reporter and was replaced by Mrs. George Hart. Installed as president was Mrs. Grohol.

Door prize was awarded to Mrs. Charles Snyder. The officers served lunch. For the musical program, Joy Humphrey played a piano solo, Gesdina Nickas, a tonette solo, Jane Hughes played the clarinet, and piano pieces were played by Margaret Stull. The Halloween festival will be Oct. 16.

Wife Tells Of Battles With Mate

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The other day my husband and I had an argument and he slapped my face and even tried to choke me. His firm, retired him an a small pension and ever since that he has been unbearable. He gambles and when he loses he beats me.

I don't like to divorce him as we have been married so long and it would disgrace his family, but he's very hard to live with and always has been so. He's almost 70 years of age. Can you suggest anything which would give me peace in my home? D.

There's no reason why any woman, living in these United States, should be submitted to brutal treatment from a jungle-like creature who goes by the name of a man. The trouble with women who are beaten is that they put up with this, unlawful behavior hoping to preserve an appearance of respectability before the neighbors. Believe it or not, the neighbors always know whether there's a gorilla next door or down the block.

This woman should take her troubles to the Legal Aid Society.

Engaged To One, In Love With Another.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a girl of 16 and have a happy home life. I have been going with a non-commissioned officer from Texas. He was engaged and was to be married, but he broke off this affair because he said he loves me more than that girl.

I know that he must still love her for he talks about her all the time, and I feel that if I quit him he would marry her. He is weak and needs someone to look after him.

Confused.

Your diagnosis of this young man is correst. He's just weak. If you became engaged to him and he was sent to another post, he'd probably find consolation in the first attractive girl he met. Don't take him seriously, at 16, unless you get a genuine hero plus other advantages and you're so much in love you can't live without him another minute.

Condones Husband's Escapades.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been married ten years and have a little boy and a girl—one even and the other five. My husband has always been a good provider and is devoted to the children, and they to him. There is very little friction in our home, so I am quite happy, with one exception.

I have known my husband to have affairs with other women since we were married, and I am quite sure there is one at present. My husband makes friends so readily, especially with women, that he always has some one "on the string." Don't suggest that I imagine these things and am jealous. I really admire his cheerful and friendly ways.

"I've known of two affairs which became intimate, but I knew nothing of them until they were over, and then I thought there was no use bringing up old stuff which might break up our home. I believe my husband loves me and we've always been such good companions that I hesitate to speak of this matter.

Considering all the other assets of my married life, is this one of the imperfections I should accept in my mate?

B.

You're more philosophical about your husband's shortcomings than many of my correspondents, and as he has great charm to balance his flirtations, your point of view is the right one for a woman not of the possessive type. Many women in your position have divorced these honey-sipping husbands, and then nearly died of unhappiness when the break was final.

You would, I think, be most unhappy if you divorced this charming philanderer.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

At my outcry Miss Whitlock turned from the couch where Carolyn was supposed to be sleeping.

"There's a dummy in this bed, too," she said, joining me in my rush to the hall.

"Harry!" I gasped, and he came swiftly to my side, his facial muscles tensing grimly as I told him of my discovery.

"What about the bed linen?" he asked. "Was it warm?"

"Fairly warm," I told him. "They must have left within the last few minutes."

"Then I know where they are," he said, keeping his voice to a whisper, as all of us had ours. "There's a door through Lil's closet to a room where she stores old drawings and manuscripts. She and Carol are in there, I'll bet, waiting a chance to get down to the door. I only hope they haven't heard us. Come with me."

Plan Capture.

Close at his heels we went down the hall and ranged ourselves in front of that store room door.

"Miss Whitlock," Harry whispered, "please go down and warn the men of what has happened. If my wife and Carolyn are on their way down, give us a signal as soon as they get there. And you look out for Carolyn. If they're inside here, I may have to let her go while I hold Mrs. Underwood. But Carolyn mustn't get out. Watch out for her, and tie her up if necessary."

"I'll deal with her," the nurse promised, as she hurried to the stairs. Then Harry softly tried the store room door, which was locked.

"Lillian!" he called, "let me in, Sweet!"

He waited, called again, then at a scrambling noise inside, caught my hand and rushed me noiselessly to the door of Lillian's sitting room.

Caught Just In Time.

"If they go out that other door, they'll have to come around here to get to the stairs," he whispered, "so we have them either way."

Stationed beside the door we flattened curselves against a little recess in the wall, to delay discovery. There I held my breath cut off as the door was opened stealthily and Lillian, followed by Carolyn, stole cautiously into the hall.

"Oh, ah!" Lillian screamed as her husband swept her into his arms. "Harry! You don't know what you're doing! I'm to have word of Marion in another hour, if I can get out. Carolyn, dear, run! Perhaps you can make it."

"Not this time," I said, holding Carolyn firmly by both arms. But I fared badly, as she squirmed in my grasp and kicked me viciously in her effort to get away.

Harry sent out a stentorian call, and just as Carolyn's strength threatened to wear mine down, Dicky came leaping up the stairs and pinioned her kicking feet, with Miss Whitlock close behind him.

"Grab this wildcat, will you," said Dicky to the nurse, "and hold her tight until we decide what to do with her. Madge, you can let go when Miss Whitlock has her."

Dicky glared at Carolin.

"And how you'll pay for that!" he threatened.

"You cheap coward!" she flared. "Where's my brother?"

"I told him to stay downstairs," Dicky said. "He isn't particularly anxious to see you after this last stunt you've tried to pull, and it wouldn't be very edifying for him to watch what's going to happen to you."

The threat in his voice made the girl cower, although I knew that no physical chastisement would be given her. But Lillian suddenly broke out into passionate invective.

"If one of you touches that child, except with gentleness," she threatened, "I'll—I'll—" and her voice broke into hysterical sobs.

Promises that are the hardest to obtain are the surest of fulfillment.

Early Weeks Of Child's First Year

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

The early days at school are very trying to many a new pupil and his mother, not to mention his teacher. Often the teacher has more trouble with the mother than with the child. Naturally the mother of the tot going to kindergarten or first grade feels it will be hard for him in the strange surroundings without her, particularly if the child has been nearly always with the mother and dependent on her emotionally. Feeling that her child will be unhappy the mother may stay through the opening session or all day, which is about the worst possible thing for her to do.

Let me urge the mother, after she has taken a child to the teacher, to return home at once, leaving with little or no ceremony. Though the child should cry bitterly after her, he will soon calm down once she is out of sight. If he discovers she is anxious about leaving him and grows more solicitous as he clings to her and begs her to stay with him, he surely will continue to work on her feelings and stir up more discomfort in himself. Any lingering uncertainty makes it harder all around.

It is fortunate if the child can go to school without his mother but with some other children, preferably with some he knows will be in his room, or older ones who will protect him. The next best thing is for him to go with his father or mother and some of these children.

Child Who Plays "Sick."

Be on guard about the child who plays sick. Either he has not been weaned emotionally or has had some distressing experiences at school or on the way there. If he says he is sick on a school morning, take his temperature and call the doctor in case he has a fever. If he has no fever, but still insists he is sick, put him to bed for the entire day and night. Since he is "sick" he should not have too much attention, no books, funnies or radio, and a light diet. Next morning he probably will feel better.

Today's Dish Is Stylish Meat Balls

By BETSY NEWMAN

We can cut the usual amount of coffee we have been using and accustom ourselves to a ration just as easily as we have cut down on sugar. Take one level tablespoon of coffee to the cup, and use boiling water to make it. Rinse pot as you do for tea, measure water into it, measure coffee and put into container, or pour measured boiling water over it—according to your method—perk for 5 minutes or follow directions as to drip methods that come with your coffee-maker.

Today's Menu.

Stylish Meat Balls
Broccoli Mixed Green Salad
Sliced Peaches
Brownies Coffee

Stylish Meat Balls

1½ lbs. ground beef
½ c. uncooked rice
1 tsp. pepper
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. grated or finely chopped onion
1 can tomato soup
½ can water
2 tbsp. chopped green pepper

Mix ground beef, rice, salt and pepper and shape into small balls. Drop into tomato soup to which water, green pepper and onion have been added, and cook slowly until meat and rice are done, about 1 hour. Serve meat and rice balls with tomato soup over them.

Brownies

½ c. shortening
½ c. honey
½ c. sugar
2 eggs
½ c. flour
¼ tsp. baking soda
¼ tsp. salt
2 sqs. chocolate
1 c. chopped walnuts

Melt shortening, add sugar and honey and mix thoroughly. Add beaten eggs. Sift flour, measure and sift again with baking soda and salt and add to first mixture. Next add melted chocolate and finely-chopped walnuts. Bake in well-greased shallow pan in slow oven (300 degrees F.) for about 45 minutes. Cut in squares when done, then cool. Makes about 1 dozen. Leave in pan until cool.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

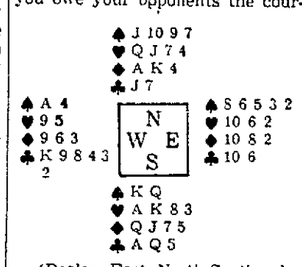
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SANE TIME-SAVING

You hear people remark that they never again will claim the remaining tricks of a hand, or concede them, just because there has been some discussion of an unsatisfactory nature. Being careful about such matters is wise, but refusing ever to claim or concede tricks is merely an inconsiderate waste of other people's time. When it is absolutely certain that you can take the remaining tricks, you owe your opponents the courtesy of sane time-saving. By the same token, if it becomes absolutely certain your side can take no more, the same reason should impel you to concede the others.

There are several points of interest to that bidding, which came with four of the world's greatest players meeting in the World's Championship Masters Pairs, won by Charles H. Goren, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Al M. Sobel, of New York, who were respectively East and West on this deal. Howard Schenken of the Four Aces, was South, and Lee Hazen, whose four later won the team championship, was the North.



(Dealer. East North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	4 NT	Pass	6 NT

An effort to steer the hand into No Trumps instead of suit caused Mr. Hazen to answer the opener with spades instead of raising hearts with four of them, as the scoring was match-point. When Mr. Schenken forced with 2-No-Trumps instead of 3-Diamonds, his partner knew there was no danger in his indicating tops of that suit with his second bid. That encouraged Mr. Schenken to invite slam, an invitation which Mr. Hazen gladly accepted.

Now for the moral of this hand. After Mr. Goren led the diamond 9, Mr. Schenken looked his riches over, saw that he could positively take 12 tricks and spread his hand, conceding one trick to the Spade A. His opponents promptly granted his claim.

How silly it would have been to play that hand out in the hope that someone would discard the Spade A. Also, how silly it would have been for the defenders, after seeing his hand, to refuse to concede the rest of the tricks.

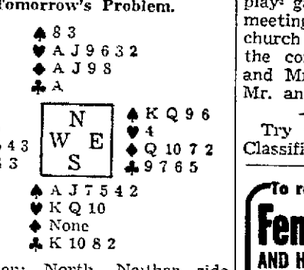
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

If North bids 1-Heart, South 2-Spades, North 3-Diamonds, and North finally lands in 7-Hearts, why should it be clear-cut for East to figure out the killing lead? lead?

HOROSCOPE

FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 19

Conflicting issues and difficult situations may arise on this day, to be solved by sagacity, prudence and the assistance of trustworthy and influential friends in high places. Seek their aid and advice and move without extravagance either in behavior, or financially. Be wise in travel, change, investments.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of excellent prospects of advancement, preferment and promotion, with favors and sound advice and substantial support from those in high places. At the same time there may be loss, financially, and in prestige and popularity, possibly due to over-indulgence and extravagance in behavior, show, carelessness as to the truth and general integrity and stability. Travel carefully, be careful of writings.

A child born on this day may require very rigid and careful training by precept and example, lest it run into danger through careless, easy and expedient conduct and extravagance.

Tygers Open Grid Season Tonight Against Cowboys

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Hello Rex: Don't suppose you remember me, but here goes: I'm one of the Dunn twins. Remember? Up at the bowling alleys?

Well, just now I am in the hospital here at Camp Davis, N. C. I accidentally broke a couple of bones in my right foot. I expect to be laid up here for one more month. (I've been here two weeks already.)

So I have lots of time to write and read, and came across a picture of Ed Arlin in the Daily News, Greensboro, N. C. So thought I'd send it on to you. I receive your paper here at the camp and have followed your column ever since I left Mansfield, which was on May 13, 1942. I am attending the specialist school here at Camp Davis. Will graduate in six more weeks (after I get out of hospital) and receive a staff sergeant's rating.

Say! How does Mansfield high's football team look this year. Haven't noticed much about them yet. I see by this week's papers that the bowling seasor. is rolling around again. You haven't given up trying to get 100 have you?

Will ship you one of our 90 mm guns, then you'll get a perfect score!

* * *

Now Rex Hess, he's the one,
Each year when bowling season starts anew,
Forgets that last year he said, "I'm through!"
He'll drop one at the foul line
And when the ball rolls in the gutter,
He'll say, "Darn it, that's the same thing
I've been doing with my putter."
(Now who's a poet?)

Yours,
Pvt. Edward Dunn,
Station Hospital,
Ward 9,
Camp Davis, N. C.

I should resent that.

I'll have you know, Ed, that my average for last season was 104, off that one game I rolled.

Still trying to hit 100, my eye! We high average bowlers don't have to worry about things like that.

I've been trying to get a copy of that picture of the Georgia university freshman football players, all of them shaved bald-headed, including Mansfield's Ed Arlin, and the publicity department at Georgia is also trying to locate a print for me.

And from that same publicity department comes the word that Arlin has not only been promoted to the varsity, as reported in this strip not long ago, but that they expect the Mansfield boy to develop into a really great tackle.

Final note to Eddie Dunn: Sorry, old chap, you have just been blackballed by the Poetry Society of America. That happened to me a long time ago.

Whippet Regular Misses Opener

SHELBY—One regular, Dean Metz, will be sitting on the side lines because of injuries when the Shelby Whippets meet Norwalk under the floodlights at Norwalk tonight.

Metz was injured during practice this week.

GRANGE TO MEET

MILLERSBURG — Hardy Grange will meet Wednesday evening, Sept. 23 in the D. of A. hall. It will be the annual inspection meeting.

Flatbush Floogies Fold Up

Dodgers Insist on Losing National League Flag.

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

WELL, children, it looks like you can patch up what's left of the tires on the family bus and head for old St. Loo for your world series fun, and from what's been going here lately it is no longer so much the Cardinals winning as the Dodgers losing the National league flag.

* * *

For, if ever a club looked like it had folded up, the Dodgers from Flatbush did just that yesterday in dropping a 3-2 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates for their sixth setback in seven games.

What made the Bums seem all the more pathetic was the way the Cards kept right on fighting in Boston and finally won out 6-4 with a five-run blast in the ninth, to go three games in front in the pennant parade.

At the same instant as the guys from St. Louis were finally getting to Al Javery—after being muffled with five hits for eight frames—three Dodgers were walking meekly up to the plate at Ebbets Field for their ninth-inning "licks" and being retired in order with no more fight than you'll find in a slightly dead chicken.

The net result of these proceedings was to put the Cards in a spot where only a major catastrophe can keep the Redbirds out of the senior circuit championship, climaxing one of the sturdiest uphill fights in years. For, not only were they three games in front with only eight to go, but two of these games were on the important "losing side" in the records.

The Cards headed west to pick up against the Cubs Saturday and the Dodgers tangled with the Phillies today.

With the hot National league shindig still jus. about the whole show, the chief supporting features of the day saw the New York Yankees win their 100th ball game to break a record they already had in the books and Tex Hughson join the select "20-game-winners" pitching set.

* * *

Joe DiMaggio's 20 homer of the season, good for three runs, was the big blow for the Yanks as they knocked off the Detroit Tigers 7-4. This marked the eighth season in which the Bombers had chalked up 100 or more victories, adding one more year to the mark they already had.

Hughson became the first 20-game winner for the Boston Red Sox since the hey-day of Wesley-the-Cheek Ferrell. Tex spread nine hits among the St. Louis Browns and galloped off with a 5-1 decision.

But the pitching job of the afternoon came out of the Philadelphia Athletics. Young Roger Wolff had Jimmy Dykes moaning in agony as he handcuffed the Chicago White Sox with just two safeties for a 1-0 victory.

Out in Cleveland, Sid Hudson arrived on the scene in the 11th inning for the Senators just in time to walk home the winning run that gave the Indians a 6-5 ball game.

* * *

Babe Young clouted a homer and three singles and knocked in seven runs to back up Harry Feldman's five-hit fast-balling and give the New York Giants an easy 11-1 win over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Chicago Cubs flailed the Phillies 8-0 behind Hank Wyse's eight-hit whitewashing job.

ERIE LEADS CANTON IN PLAY-OFF GAMES

ERIE, Pa. —(AP)— Erie opened its home series in the finals of the Mid-Atlantic league Shaughnessy tonight with a two-game edge over Canton.

The Sailors took two straight at Canton, winning the second 5 to 1 last night. The teams play three games here, and if other contests are needed in the best four-out-of-seven series their site will be decided by the toss of a coin.

GOPHERS STRENGTHENED

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(INS)—The Minnesota Gophers' lineup was strengthened today by the return of Bill Garnaas, quarterback, Don Nolander, center and Charles Dellago, guard. The trio was demoted recently but their outstanding performances in practice sessions warranted their return to the first string team.

SAVOLD POUNDS OUT UNPOPULAR VERDICT

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Heavyweight Lee Savold from Des Moines, Ia., pounded out an unpopular 10-round decision over Tony Musto of Chicago last night before 4,500 fans at Olympia stadium.

Savold's triumph avenged a split decision which Musto won over the Des Moines fighter in Washington, D. C., a month ago.

Rio Grande Still Trying

Start Fifth Campaign Without Single Victory.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's collegiate football season was only a few hours old today, but already one record was in the books which cannot be broken this year.

Little Rio Grande, from down in the Galiia county hills, launched the campaign last night by absorbing a 25 to 0 defeat at the hands of Louisville (Ky.) University.

The defeat launched the kids from the Knob country on their fifth straight campaign without a victory. Just how many defeats in a row the Rio Grandes have suffered isn't remembered, but the last time the Gallia countians finished in front was back in 1937. Old timers figure the defeat string must be around the 40 mark.

The 1939 and 1940 campaigns, in addition to netting no victories, found the Rio Granges failing to score a single point. They broke that string of goose eggs last season, however, by counting three futile touchdowns.

Nothing like the Rio Grande victory drouth has been seen around the Buckeye realm since the days, some six or seven years ago, when Hiram college explained an unprecedented series of losses with a calm and dignified "Hiram doesn't hire 'em."

Coach Mendell Beattie, who took over the Rio Grande helm last year, said the college "doesn't have the material to play the larger schools on an even basis, but we'll keep trying, anyway."

Now that the hill country collegians have lifted the lid off the campaign, action becomes hot and heavy on the Buckeye front. Western Reserve's mighty Red Cats invade Akron's Rubber Bowl tonight for a tilt with Akron's Zippers, while four contests are on Saturday's slate.

* * *

Findlay, beaten six times in a row by Dayton's Flyers, tries again Saturday night in the Gem City against Coach Harry Baujan's powerhouse; Xavier, headed by state scoring champion Chet Mutryn, invades Indianapolis for an afternoon clash with Butler; Youngstown Penguins entertain South Dakota State, while Wright-Patterson field, fresh from a 14-7 win over Miami University's Naval Radio Cadets, tackles Muskingum at New Concord.

All-Ohio Battle For Title Begins

(By Associated Press)

The all-Ohio battle for the Governor's cup championship of the American association opens tonight between Columbus and Toledo, with Bill Crouch slated to take the mound for the Red Birds and Archie McKain Toledo's pitching nominee.

* * *

The winner of the best-of-seven series will meet either the Syracuse Chiefs or the Jersey City Giants, finalists in the International league playoffs, for the little world's series crown. Syracuse eliminated Montreal last night, 7-2. Jersey City made the grade a day earlier, putting out the pennant-winning Newark Bears, four games to two.

Crouch of Columbus has won 11 games this season and lost 12, and Toledo's McKain compiled 17 victories to 11 defeats.

The Birds and Mud Hens play two games in Columbus before moving to Toledo. If the series goes beyond five encounters the teams return to Ohio's capital.

ELYRIA SOPHOMORE PROMOTED BY BROWN

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Bob Jabbusch, sophomore guard from Elyria, was moved to the Ohio State university first team today after impressive work during the first 10 days of football practice for the Buckeyes.

Coach Paul Brown, meanwhile, tried Paul Sarringhaus, veteran halfback, as a punter in an effort to solve the club's kicking problem. Brown said Sarringhous' boots looked "promising."

BADGERS OPEN

MADISON, Wis. — (INS) — Coach Harry Stuhldreher will unveil his 1942 Wisconsin squad tomorrow in the opening game of the season against the hardy Camp Grant team at Madison. The Badger coach may not use Elroy Hirsch, sophomore back fieldman from Wausau, Wis., and Fullback "Pat" Harder, against the Soldiers as Stuhldreher fears they may aggravate recent injuries.

Indians Need Two Victories

Can Finish In First Division For Boudreau.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—If they can win their next two games, the Cleveland Indians can make Manager Lou Boudreau's dream come true.

Boudreau asked only that the Indians finish in the first division, in his first season as pilot. That's the best they can do, now.

Toiling through 11 innings that tried the patience of the few fans on hand, the Indians triumphed 6 to 5 over the Washington Senators yesterday and thereby extended their lead over the fifth-place Detroit Tigers to two and a half games.

Victories in their contests with the Tigers tomorrow and Sunday would boost the Indians' edge to four and a half games and assure them of a fourth-place tie, at least, regardless of what happens the rest of the season. Cleveland has five contests to play after the upcoming Detroit Tigers series, and the Tigers have four.

The Tribe got its winning tally in yesterday's extra-inning affair after Sid Hudson relieved Rookie Ray Scarborough in the 11th. Hudson allowed two hits, purposely passed Les Fleming and then let in Cleveland's final run by walking Buster Mills, who batted for Oscar Grimes.

Rams Ready For Opener

Seek Revenge Against New London Tomorrow.

Madison high school Rams were all set today for their season's opener with New London tomorrow night under the lights at Madison field, where they'll be seeking revenge for a defeat handed them last year by the New London club.

The Madison-New London rivalry goes back to the days when the two schools annually battled for the mythical Class B championship of the state.

* * *

Probable lineup for the Rams tomorrow night will be: Gross, le, Morrison, lt, Campbell, lg, Spriesterbach, c, Harfman, rg, Rinehart, rt, Poston, re, Bader, Anthony Wynn and Hammer in the backfield.

Grudge Battle Booked Sunday

Metz Wants Revenge In Freak Doubleheader.

"You know, this game Sunday will be something of a grudge battle," declared Pete Metz, talking about the baseball, softball doubleheader his All-Stars will play with the Mansfield Travelers at the Fairground.

"I was trying to round up a team to play at the Fairground last spring," said Metz, "and Red Hamman, manager of the Travelers, beat me to it. Now I want to show the fans we would have had the best team."

For the baseball game at 1:30, Metz said he expected to start Freddie Lewis at third base, Pete Campbell, second base, Bob DeHaven, shortstop, Bob Parr or Jack Miles, first base, Pete Keiser and the Herrick twins in the outfield, Erhart or Weaver, catch, and John Smith, pitch.

"Stub" Winebrenner will be on the hill for the Stars in the softball tilt.

Entirely New Mansfield Machine Unveiled

Season Ticket Sale Surpasses That of Undefeated 1941

THE FOOTBALL SEASON of 1942 opens tonight at 8 o'clock at Stadium field with the unveiling of an entirely new Mansfield high school gridiron machine as the Tygers tangle with their traditional opening night foe from Akron West high.

Not one starting regular from the undefeated Tygers of 1941 will be on hand for the '42 inaugural this evening, following the loss of more than 16 players off the top of last year's squad. And while there'll be a sprinkling of lettermen in the lineup, only three were listed as first-line replacements a year ago. They are Bill Lewis and Jim Burrage, ends, and Bill Snowden, center.

Other letter winners, Art Goettle and Gene Hetler, guards, Jerry Snyder, tackle, and Bill Boyce, Dick Butterfield and Frank Rachel in the backfield, gained considerable experience last year.

No one expects the 1942 Tygers to duplicate the undefeated record of last season as they face a suicide schedule that sends them against such teams as Niles, Springfield, Massillon, Portsmouth and Canton McKinley on successive week-ends.

But there's a spirit of optimism out at the high school, and that spirit seems to have spread downtown, where interest, strangely enough, is higher than it was at this time a year ago when Mansfield was looking forward to a great season.

Following custom, only three sections of seats at Stadium field were placed on sale with season tickets. And George Sherman, ticket chairman, announced today a complete sell-out of those three sections for the season, a much better record than he could report a year ago.

Akron West will have seven lettermen in the starting lineup tonight, seeking revenge for the 40-0 trimming handed them in the opener in 1941. They will be Jim Black at left tackle, Erben, center, Azar, right guard, McCombs, right tackle, Daniell, right end, Zuindel, quarterback, and Finney, left half.

Opening night ceremonies will get under way at 7:50 with the flag raising in charge of the American Legion, assisted by the high school band.

Probable lineups will be:

STOCK LEADERS BOAST MODEST UPWARD SWING

Autumn Retail Trade Shows Two to Five Per Cent Gain Over 1941.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks took on a modest recovery tinge in today's market proceedings.

Up fractionally were Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, Goodrich and General Motors. U. S. Steel and Anaconda were a shade lower.

A little market cheer was derived from the Dun & Bradstreet survey estimating that the fall upswing in retail spending this week put dollar volume for merchants at 2 to 5 per cent above the comparable period last year. The agency said the expansion in demand was associated with sharp increases in payrolls and cash from newly harvested crops.

Notice was taken of the Federal compilation placing last week's department store sales for the country as a whole at 3 per cent under the like 1941 week. The Labor Day business recess, coming later in 1942, accounted for the minor recession. In the week before the year-to-year upturn was 26 per cent.

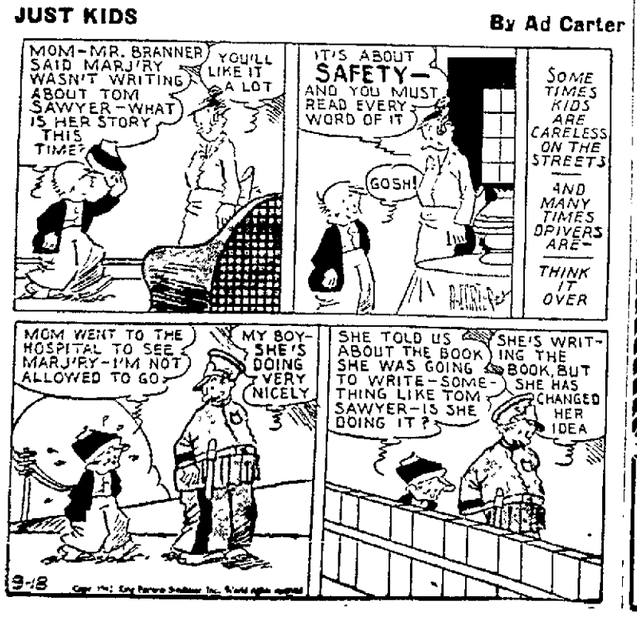
JUST KIDS — By Ad Carter



MOM—MR. BRANNER SAID MARJ'RY WASN'T WRITING ABOUT TOM SAWYER—WHAT IS HER STORY THIS TIME?
YOU'LL LIKE IT A LOT
IT'S ABOUT SAFETY—AND YOU MUST READ EVERY WORD OF IT
GOSH!
SOME TIMES KIDS ARE CARELESS ON THE STREETS—AND MANY TIMES DRIVERS ARE—THINK IT OVER MOM WENT TO THE HOSPITAL TO SEE MARJ'RY—I'M NOT ALLOWED TO GO.
MY BOY—SHE'S DOING VERY NICELY
SHE TOLD US ABOUT THE BOOK SHE WAS GOING TO WRITE—SOMETHING LIKE TOM SAWYER—IS SHE DOING IT?
SHE'S WRITING THE BOOK, BUT SHE HAS CHANGED HER IDEA

SAYS JAPS WILL NEVER 'CRACK'

Grew Believes Nazis Will Give Up When Tide Turns But Japs Must Be Destroyed.

can restore peace in the Pacific—but only by a victory so complete that it would discredit the Japanese military machine in the eyes of the Japanese people and make them realize, belatedly, that crime does not pay.

He left the plans for "utter and complete defeat" of Japan to American strategists and tacticians, but suggested as a layman this formula for victory:

1. Gradual but progressive dislodgement of the Japanese from areas they have temporarily occupied.

2. Gradual but progressive destruction of the Japanese navy, merchant marine and air force to isolate the Japanese mainland.

"This will not be the end," he said, "but it will be the beginning of the end. Let us leave the coup de grace to our tacticians. They will not fail."

Grew drew his contrast of the German and Japanese people from 10 years of diplomatic experience in each country. He had been ambassador to Japan for 10 years when the war began at Pearl Harbor. In 1917, he had served nearly 10 years at the American embassy in Berlin when the United States broke diplomatic relations with Germany.

BUILD SEA WALL

Nahant Residents Work To Renovate Rotted Dock.

NAHANT, Mass.—(INS)—Harking back to the good old days when country folk banded together to help a neighbor establish a home. Nahanters have resorted to community labor to erect a stone sea wall.

The project started two weeks ago when the town fathers decided the cost of replacing a 60 foot section of rotted wooden sea wall with a stone dike would be prohibitive.

Staid businessmen, vacationers and civic minded residents then went into a huddle and arrived at the decision that they would do the job themselves

For the next two weeks the community entered into the task with zeal, forsaking fishing and other sports to lug rocks and dismantle the wooden structure.

Women didn't want to be left out of the undertaking and so lemonade and lunch carrying crews were organized.

With the barrier completed, many of the volunteer workers are sporting blistered hands; but fondly appraising their accomplishment they unanimously agree that "it was worth it"

3 ELECTROCUTED

Sing Sing Has First Triple Execution in Months.

OSSINING, N. Y. — (INS) — Sing Sing's death house — so-called "murderer's row," had three less inmates today following last night's triple execution, the first in many months.

Put to death were Manuel Jacinto, 48, of Highland Falls, N. Y., who was convicted of the grudge slaying of Mrs. Doris Croyle and her employer, James Monto, coal and ice dealer; and two Negro "muggers" who strangled their victim in a hold-up that netted them only 14 cents plus a few dollars they realized on clothing they stripped from his body.

They were, Lawrence Edwards, 19, and James Clark, 22, both of New York City.

BUCYRUS GIRL WINS CONTEST

Will Represent Ohio at 4-H Congress in Chicago During November.

BUCYRUS — Dorothy Louise Ulmer, 17, of Bucyrus, today won first honors in the style review contest at the 28th 4-H club congress, dispatches from Columbus said. The contest was for girls designing and making their own dresses.

Dorothy, who is a senior at Bucyrus high school will represent Ohio at the national 4-H club congress in Chicago late in November.

Evelyn Margaret Nold, 16-year-old blond Leetonia high school student, and George William Quillin, 16, of Worthington were named Ohio's healthiest boy and girl at the close of congress at Ohio State university.

Evelyn, who has been in 4-H club work for six years, won out over 20 other girls. She scored a total of 982 points out of a possible 1,000.

George triumphed over 24 boys in the competition which was a traditional feature of the Ohio State fair until this year. He scored 990 out of a possible 1,000 points.

Harlow Jennings, of Greenwich, was among five who received $25 war bonds for leadership and community activity.
